SHOOTS GIRL AND HIMSELF

Candido Vienna of East Boston shot his fourteen-year-old niece, Septimina Vienna, to-day, shot himself, then drenched his own clothing with kerosene and set himself on fire. Uncle and niece were taken to the East Boston Relief Station, dying.

The uncle, a single man of forty-five years, wished to marry the girl. She did not care for him. Her parents had forbidden him to make love to her, both on account of the relationship and the difference in ages.

The murderous attack on the girl took place at No. 304 Orleans street, where Candido Vienna lived with his brother's family, of whom the niece is one.

The uncle fired one shot at the girl, wounding her in the head. She fled into the kitchen, past her horrified mother and into a sideroom, where she crawled under a bed.

Shoots Child Again.

The uncle, raving and brandishing his smoking revolver, pursued the shrieking child. Reaching under the bed, he clutched her by one leg, dragged her out and, while she begged for mercy, shot her in the head a second time. The second bullet went through the child's right hand, which she had put up to shield her head.

After Septimina had been taken to the Relief Hospital the police searched for the uncle. They found him in the cellar, which was full of smoke, with his clothing burned from the lower part of his body and with flames creeping up toward his head. Hospital surgeons later found two bullet wounds in his head, showing how he had tried one method of suicide, then another.

Candido Vienna is a fisherman, but has not worked for several weeks. His brother has another niece, twelve years old, named Beatrice. Both girls are pretty, with the fast-developing beauty of the Latin race.

Wanted to Marry Girl.

Candido always seemed fond of his nieces. A few months ago he became quite affectionate toward Septimina, the elder girl, told her mother about it, but nothing particular was thought of it till Candido told his brother and sister-in-law that he wished to marry Septimina. They promptly told him it was impossible, that he was too old and she too young, in the first place, and that his being her uncle forbade it.

But Candido nursed his infatuation for the budding girl secretly. He tried to

BANKRUPT PETITION AGAINST MOTOR CO.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was to-day filed in the United States District Court against the Waite Robbins Motor Company of Boston by William H. Rothwell of Brookline and Robert Seymour and Victor J. Hudon of Boston, whose claims amount to $738.35. The petitioners say that, as an act of bankruptcy, the Waite Robbins Company has transferred some of its property.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR INSURANCE COMPANY

Information was filed in the Supreme Court to-day by the Attorney-General, at the instigation of the insurance commissioner, asking for an injunction restraining the Empire Accident Corporation of Lowell, an assessment insurance company, from doing business and for appointment of a receiver to wind up its affairs. It is alleged that its liabilities exceed its assets. Judge Hammond issued an order of notice returnable January 24.

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL SHOT BY HER UNCLE

SEPTIMINA VIENNA

CROSS-EXAMINE MRS. ALDRICH

Mrs. Charles T. Aldrich, widow of the Ashland mill owner whose will his three sons are trying to have set aside, was cross-examined by Attorney Charles W. Bartlett, counsel for one of the sons when the trial of the suit was resumed before Judge George in the Probate Court to-day.

Mrs. Aldrich came to court accompanied by Mrs. Adelaine Mitchell Woodward, the adopted daughter of Aldrich. The three sons and the daughter were in court. The daughter is not fighting the will, but she will testify for the contestants.

As soon as the trial opened the certificate of adoption was introduced showing that Aldrich had adopted Adelaide Mitchell six days after his marriage to Mrs. Aldrich. Attorney Bartlett questioned the widow about this. He asked:

Q.—Were'nt you surprised that your husband should adopt a woman twenty-six or twenty-seven years old as his daughter, six days after your marriage to him? A.—No, I was not. It never occurred to me that was a matter of fact I didn't know anything about it.

Q.—Did you suggest to Mr. Aldrich that he adopt Miss Mitchell? A.—No, I did not; I didn't know anything about his intentions in that line.

Q.—Did Mr. Aldrich give his adopted daughter a house in Millbury? A.—I believe he did.

Q.—What were your relations with Miss Mitchell after your husband adopted her. A.—They have always been of the pleasantest kind.

General Bartlett then asked Mrs. Aldrich detailed questions in an effort to get from her the exact amount of property that her husband left.

Mrs. Aldrich Angered.

Mrs. Aldrich's examination was marked with several lively tilts between herself and General Bartlett. She became very angry several times, and on one occasion got up from her chair and rising to her full height hurled the answer at Mr. Bartlett in such a manner that nearly all the spectators laughed, as did also Judge George.

She admitted that her husband gave her a schedule of his property on several occasions. She said that he gave them to her voluntarily and that she did not ask for them. She could not remember the value of his property at any time.

Q.—Would you say that he had $50,000 worth of property when he died? A.—I really couldn't say.

Q.—Did he have $2.00 worth of property? A.—Yes.

Q.—How much farther will you go? A.—I will not get at all in an angry tone. I am here to tell what I know, and not to guess.

Q.—Oh, is that so? A.—Yes. I have been told to tell the truth by my attorneys.

Q.—Is that so? Do you know why you should have had that instruction? A.—I think it is generally given to all witnesses by lawyers.

Told to Tell the Truth.

Q.—How many times were you told to tell the truth when you came into court? A.—I don't know. I do know it is the general practice of lawyers to tell witnesses to tell the truth.

Q.—Did you ever know of a lawyer telling a witness not to tell the truth? A.—Sometimes that is necessary.

Q.—I have no doubt of it. Did your husband have only $2,000 to run his big woolen business with? A.—I didn't say so.

Q.—How much did Mr. Aldrich give you after your marriage? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Can't you add it up? A.—I'm not good at figures.

Q.—You are not a mathematician, then? A.—No.

Q.—What was your business after you were married? A.—My business was looking after my husband and my house.

Q.—Where did the money which you got and all the property you have got come from?

Mrs. Aldrich rose from her chair and, gripping the sides of the witness stand, replied in an angry tone, "All the money I got originally came from my husband, where it should come from."

Q.—Did he when you got from your husband? A.—Two hundred and ninety-eight shares of American Woolen stock. Have you got that down?

Q.—No, I haven't. You put it down. How much of you pay for that? A.—Something over $22,000.

Q.—What other property do you own? A.—I have a note of $3,000, a mortgage of $——00 on a house in Winthrop, and I have an interest in property in Woodbury village, in Worcester County.

HUB TRAIN IN WRECK; 4 KILLED

BATAVIA, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Four persons were killed and twenty-six injured in a rear-end collision on the New York Central here to-day. A Western express train crashed into the Boston and Buffalo special train, No. 23, while it was standing on a sliding waiting to pull out. The Western express, which runs from New York to Chicago, left New York at 6 o'clock last evening.

After the crash the cars caught fire. Three cars were completely telescoped, and the locomotive drawing the express was hurled into a ditch. The fire in the ruins hindered the rescuers in their work.

Batavia is not a scheduled stop for the special, but was put off at the siding to take on water. A heavy fog prevailed which obscured the signals, and this is believed to have been the direct cause of the accident. The trains were running about twenty minutes apart. The special was just getting ready to depart when the express, travelling at terrific speed, crashed into the rear end.

Within a few minutes after the accident practically every hospital ambulance in Batavia was on the scene. Twelve of the injured who were found lying along the track were rushed to the Batavia hospital, where it was said that a number of them were mortally hurt. Nearly every physician in town was hurried to the scene of the wreck to render medical attention to the injured.

Bodies Under Locomotive.

Train men expressed the belief that two bodies lay under the wreck of the Western express locomotive in the ditch beside the track and orders were sent for a wrecking train to lift the giant locomotive.

The boiler of the engine was punctured and boiling water and jets of scalding steam played upon the wreckage.

Several of the injured were riding in the smoker of the express, which crumpled up, the wreckage piling down upon the separate locomotive which had been hauling the train. The force of the collision was so great that the forward cars and the locomotive of the special were derailed, but did not turn over. All of the coaches were badly shaken up.

Railroad officials who arrived half an hour after the accident made an investigation, after which they declared that the signals had been set correctly. The opinion was expressed that the Buffalo special was running ahead of its schedule.

Call Fire Department.

Arriving with the railroad officials came two wrecking trains and a special train carrying doctors and nurses. The Batavia fire department was summoned to the scene and extinguished the fire which had threatened to consume the mass of debris.

James O. Moore, an attorney of Buffalo, was one of the injured passengers taken from the wreck to the Batavia Hospital. One of the dead was a young man clothed only in his pajamas. On his third finger of his right hand was a gold signet ring bearing the initials F. S. B., and on the third finger of his left hand a gold ring, engraved on the inside of which was the one word "engagement."

List of Injured.

The known injured are:

Conductor Van Schoonhamburg, Fultonville, N. Y., very seriously injured and likely to die; H. G. Stiles, Pullman conductor of train No. 69, seriously injured; R. H. Hall, address unknown, seriously injured; Monte D. Clapp, Indianapolis, seriously injured; H. L. Jones, a railroad conductor, employed by the Chicago, Illinois & Peoria railroad, slightly injured; R. McFarland, seriously injured and likely to die; James O. Moore, Buffalo, injuries not believed to be serious; Abraham Cose, Pullman porter, slightly injured; Harry A. Smith 64 Orland street, Rochester, slight ly injured; Catherine Higgins, Hopkins, New Mexico, slightly injured; Mrs. John Shaw, 20 Thorn street, Auburn, N. Y., slightly injured; John Shaw, 20 Thorn street, Auburn, N. Y., cuts and otherwise slightly injured; E. A. Hunt, 1,334 Marion street, Portland, Ore., not seriously injured; Edward Lawren, Brooklyn, slightly injured; Michael Curtis, Batavia, seriously injured and likely to die.

"KID" CURTIS GETS A YEAR IN JAIL

Charles Curtis, alias "Kid" Curtis, a Charlestown pugilist, attempted to clean up Somerville with the result that in the Charlestown District Court to-day he was sentenced to one year in the House of Correction by Judge Brazz. He nearly bit two fingers off Patrolman Charles Hartrick's hand. He was charged with assault on an officer.

BANKER INGERSOLL IS GIVEN TWO YEARS

Friday the 13th!

Hoodoo day!

It might be all right to do any of the following things to-day:

Propose to some fair dame —If you are not already married.

Bet that Lodge will be re-elected.

Bet that McInerney is not a citizen.

Bet that Fitzgerald will not found that Dynasty.

Be careful to whom you loan money to-day.

And, finally, beware of fish bones in your chowder, and

Don't go to bed with your boots on.

GROCER'S KISS COST HIM $3.06

The usual run of cases was interrupted in the Quincy Police Court to-day when Karl Kriston, a Finnish grocer, answered his name and began to explain why he had tried to steal a kiss from Mrs. Adele Sword. The court was crowded with friends of both parties.

Karl keeps a grocer shop in Station street. He is married. He is forty years old, rosy-cheeked, mostly smiles and is genial and popular.

Mrs. Sword is not as old as Karl. She testified that she was visiting her sister-in-law next door to the Sword home in Carson street when Karl came in to collect the week's grocery bill and solicit orders. She declared Karl "got fresh" and then seized her, tried to kiss her and, in her resistance, she tripped and fell. Indignant at such conduct, she had him arrested on a charge of assault.

The court declared Karl old enough to have more wisdom, but remembering his former clean reputation, let him off with the payment of the costs, about $3.06. The case was then placed on file to act as a sort of moral monitor in case Karl ever again "gets gay," as Mrs. Sword averred he did with her.

TWO BILLS CALL FOR CUT IN GAS PRICE

Bills providing for reductions in the price of gas in East Boston and the town of Winthrop were introduced in the House to-day. Representative Edward C. Bagley of Boston filed a bill, limiting the price of gas in East Boston to eighty cents. The price at present is ninety cents. Samuel Hidalgo, a citizen of Winthrop, filed a bill providing that the price of gas in that town shall not exceed one dollar. It is $1.40 at present.

ADDED FEATURE IN BIG CONEST

The awards offered in the AMERICAN'S $25,000 Contest are valuable in proportion to the efforts of the winners.

If a contest is of a frivolous or rebus sort, look and see if you are not asked to "pay part down" for the premium and then compare such with the AMERICAN'S great $25,000 Contest.

If you have entered, you know, then, what is offered. It is not something for nothing, but the exact opposite—a great deal of something, of the most valuable kind of premiums—cash in plain figures for the hardest kind of work you are capable of doing.

The cash prize is an $8,000 house, and two lots, situated in one of Boston's most beautiful residential suburbs, that YOU may have for your very own in a few short months.

STOREKEEPER FINED FOR DEFACING FLAG

For publicly defacing and treating contemptuously the flag of the United States, Myer Meyer, proprietor of a picture store at No. 1278 Tremont street, was fined $25 in the Roxbury District Court by Judge Williams to-day. He pleaded guilty. Meixler was publicly out a sign on the store and featured his paint pot to a short flagstaff around which was wrapped a flag. Chester Williams, a boy who lives directly opposite, noticed the act, and seeing some of the paint spatter over on the flag notified the police. A warrant was issued and he was arrested at his home last night.

STRANGLER IS HUNTED BY POLICE

Lying in the North Grove street morgue, awaiting identification, is the body of a girl of twenty years, found early to-day in a narrow passageway on Central Wharf, the victim of a brutal murder.

From external appearances, it looks as though the girl was killed by strangulation, accompanied by a violent blow in the mouth which knocked out two of her front teeth and almost tore a part of her nose away. The police are looking for a large, swarthy-faced man who was seen standing by the prostrate form when the body was discovered.

EVIDENCES OF A STRUGGLE PLAINLY SEEN.

It was plain that there had been a struggle. The victim's hair had been pulled down. Her waist had been torn to shreds. Her face was battered and there were marks, as though made by murderous fingers on her throat.

Medical Examiner George H. Magrath, after making an external examination of the body, gave it as his opinion that she had been murdered. He figured that she had met death about 5 a. m. to-day. She was too young, the medical examiner said, to have died from natural causes. Dr. Magrath performed an autopsy on the body this afternoon.

Search for Man Suspect.

When the body was discovered a large man of dark complexion was seen standing by it. He had the girl's hat in one hand and a bottle in the other. It is thought the man may have used the bottle as a weapon.

The man disappeared. The police began a search for him. The body lay near the water and it is thought that if the man killed the girl it was his intention to hurl the body into the water.

Just before dawn to-day a porter on the elevated railroad at the State street station heard screams which he thought were made by a woman. The screams came from the direction of Central Wharf.

Was an American Girl.

The police could find nothing on the body of the girl that indicated her identity. Dr. Magrath said that he felt certain that she was an American girl. This is the description that the medical examiner gave of her:

Age—About twenty.
Height—Five feet two inches.
Weight—110 pounds.
Hair—Light brown
Eyes—Gray.
Clothing—Black Eton jacket, black cheviot skirt, white cotton shirtwaist, black underskirt, black shoes and stockings, corset without "37."

In the pockets of the girl no notes were found. She had a ticket to a Washington street picture show and another ticket to the Hub Theatre. Dr. Magrath believed that she met her death around 5 o'clock a. m. or four or five hours before he saw the body, at 9:30 to-day.

Body Found by Driver.

The body was found by William E. Leavitt, a driver for the S. S. Pierce Company. It was about 7 o'clock. He saw the girl lying on the board floor in the narrow passageway and a man standing beside it. The man, according to Leavitt's story, had a bottle in one hand and the girl's hat in the other.

Leavitt thought the girl was intoxicated. Her face looked ghastly in the gray of the morning. He picked up her limp hand. It was cold as ice. Then he realized that he was face to face with a tragedy, if not a crime. He had the police called.

B. & M. TO OPERATE OWN COAL PLANT

New officers of the Boston & Maine today issued orders that on and after January 14 the road would operate its own coal discharging plants at Mystic Wharf, Charlestown, and Mystic River, Somerville. This leaves Portsmouth, N. H., the only plant to be operated by a private contractor, James Rougnan. C. F. Miller will be storekeeper in charge of the plants. It is expected that the road will operate its plant at Portsmouth as soon as their lease expires.

WHEATLEY CASE HAS A HEARING

The trial of William Wheatley charged with stealing the mails to defraud opened in the Federal Court here to-day. Wheatley was arrested in Lawrence on January 5 by postoffice inspectors. It is alleged that he was engaged in the promotion of worthless stock.

According to the allegations, Wheatley carried on a large business with farmers of New England and Canada, taking quantities on hay, grain and lumber from dealers and ordering samples carloads from producers, selling them for cash. In the producers he would find fault with the shipments and it is said after them about cancelling the value. It is said by the postoffice inspectors that his seldom sent any money.

Wheatley came originally from Halifax, N. S., but now lives in Rochester where he has a wife and five children. He alleges the house which he bought in Winchester is in his wife's name.

LOOKS LIKE SHEEHAN FOR N. Y. SENATOR

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—With the Democratic caucus to select a successor to United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew only three days away, all indications point to William F. Sheehan as the victor in the contest. Supporters of Edward M. Shepard still claim to have hope, but they are building this on the almost forlorn idea that two more DIs will finally oppose the choice of Charles F. Murphy. Excitement was caused in political circles here to-day by a report that a Democrat of national prominence was coming to Albany during the Democratic fight that the election of Sheehan would probably cause a factional split in the party in this State and alienate a large body of voters.

MOTHER ACCUSED OF NEGLECTING HER BOY

Mrs. Emma Redding, a young, good-looking and finely dressed woman was arraigned before Judge Sisk in the Lynn police court to-day charged with neglecting her seven-year-old son, Willie McKenzie. His father is dead and his mother has a second husband. The child was found asleep in the postoffice and is now in the custody of the State Board of Charities. Mrs. Redding denied the charge. She said her boy, young as he is, is wayward and runs away from her home on Franklin terrace. "Every time he ran away," said the Judge, "you ought to have given him a sound thrashing and don't believe in sparing the rod. The case was continued until to-morrow for further investigation.

LODGE TRICKERY ON CAPE EXPOSED

Circular-Ballots Favoring Senator Obtained Through a Misunderstanding.

The extremity in which Senator Lodge finds himself and the extent to which some of his workers find the need pressing them is shown in a convincing way by the methods of these men in the Third Barnstable District, since Governor Foss and his colleagues stirred the Cape to its depths by their memorable invasion of some weeks ago.

A number of well-known women of the district have made affidavits to the effect that they were tricked by Lodge agents into giving up referendum ballots sent to their husbands and sons by Representative A. W. Cushman.

Governor Foss made addresses in all the towns of the district—Brewster, Orleans, Eastham, Wellfleet, Truro and Provincetown. With him on that tour were former Mayor M. F. Dickinson of Cambridge, Senator Colwin L. Cook of Boston, Senator Arthur H. Mason and Andrew J. Sosis, a well-known merchant. It was agreed by both parties that Mr. Foss had made a profound impression and had stirred the Cape folks to the most serious study of the case as he presented it.

Representative Alfred W. Cushman, feeling that the voters were more interested in the question of whether it was to be or not to be Senator Lodge for six years more, in view of the obviously adverse publicity of the recent election, decided to send out a query in the form of a ballot so the voters might express their preference at that time—having then had Mr. Foss and his anti-Lodge speakers before them.

Defer Sending Ballots Till After Lodge Speech.

At the request of Senator Lodge's friends, and because he thought their request ought to be granted in simple fairness, he deferred issuing his preferential ballot until after Senator Lodge had had an opportunity to publicly reply to his critics in his Symphony Hall speech.

Representative Cushman sent out the following ballot, between 1,500 and 1,600 of them, practically one to each of the 1,700 odd voters in the district:

DIRECT VOTE FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR.

To the Voters of the Third Barnstable Representative District:

Please answer the two first questions with "Yes" or "No."

1.—Do you favor the election of Henry Cabot Lodge as United States Senator?

If not

2. Do you favor the election of Butler Ames as United States Senator?

If you reply "No" to each of the above questions show your preference among the following by marking a cross X at the right or fill in the blank space with your choice.

By reporting on or before Thursday, January 12, you will confer a great favor upon your representative,

ALFRED W. CUSHMAN.

Provincetown, Mass.

Henry Cabot Lodge.....
Butler Ames.....
John D. Long.....
Curtis Guild, Jr......
John L. Bates.....
Joseph Walker.....

Then Came Lodge Circular.

On the very day after Mr. Cushman sent out his circular-ballot, and so close after it as to be generally of somutime issue, there appeared a petition urging the re-election of Senator Lodge. This document was circulated by James M. Burke and Manuel Davis. Burke is a leading astronomer and local politician and both are of Provincetown.

Both Adams, a Provincetown merchant, publicly charges that both Burke and Davis were acting under the immediate direction of Representative Norman H. White of Brookline, active from the beginning in behalf of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge.

He has made an affidavit in which he deposes that not only has Burke told him he was thus acting under Representative White's specific instructions, but that he, Burke, expected White to see that he was well recompensed for his labors on behalf of the Big Boss of the Massachusetts machine.

Three or four days after the Cushman ballots had been in the hands of the voters, Representative Cushman, sponsor for this effort to poll the people, was notified by Peter Higgins, an old soldier, of North Eastham, that a man named Steele had been industriously at work in that part of the district collecting the ballots and had solicited Higgins for his, explaining that Representative Cushman had sent him. Steele, however, failed to get the papers apparently handed them to the Representative.

Wouldn't Give Up Ballot.

Mr. Higgins, however, having had some experience in the methods of Lodge workers in his part of the district, was shrewd enough to retain his ballot and at once communicated what he had been told to Representative Cushman.

He said that Steele had told him that Representative Cushman had mon second thought decided it best to withdraw his ballots and wanted Steele to substitute forever possible the ballots in favor of Senator Lodge's re-election.

Higgins in his letter says that he saw one of the petitions favoring Lodge in Steele's possession, that he had had an opportunity to scrutinize it, and saw it were the names of many men in Eastham whom he, Higgins, knows are not Lodge voters at all.

Representative Cushman at once began an inquiry and wrote to Mr. Higgins that if Steele or any other person was traversing the district making any such statements as expressions of his attitude, they were circulating falsehoods. He denied that he at any time had changed his mind on securing an open, frank expression of the qualified voters of the Third District as his widely-circulated ballot made possible that all statements that he had changed his mind and was requesting voters to sign the Lodge petition instead of stating their preference for United States Senator were falsehoods and that he could not brand such methods in language any too strong.

Called When Men Were Gone.

Mr. Adams said it was soon called to his attention that Burke, Davis and others were making a house to house canvass among the homes of the voters and that they timed their calls to find only the women of the household at home and when the men and voters were absent either at work or their places of business. Mr. Adams says that Burke admitted to him that he, Burke, had personally collected 250 of the ballots from the women folk of the district and had personally turned them into Representative Cushman, so does not take a Sherlock Holmes to deduce how ballots collected under such circumstances would be marked, since Burke and Davis were also industriously substituting the pro-Lodge petitions.

Two of the most active workers on behalf of the Cushman scholar in this district have been and are former Senator Eben W. Fuller from Brewster and Representative Walter O. Luscomb of Falmouth. Both are men of commanding influence in the Third District and want Senator Lodge sent back to Washington. They have been helping along the petition game in the favor.

Here are some of the affidavits which illustrate the methods of the Burke-Davis-Brown section of Bodge workers in the Barnstable voters on this great question:

Affidavits by Women.

Provincetown, Mass., January 11, 1911.

Before me, Walter Welsh, one of the Justices of the Peace within and for the County of Barnstable, personally appeared Maria N. Santos, who, being duly sworn, deposes and says, that on January 9, 1911, James M. Burke called at her home, 12 Court street, Provincetown, and told her that he was collecting ballots for Mr. Cushman and asked her if she would give him the letter received by her husband, John C. Santos, and that he, the said Burke, stated that he had a packet of similar letters and that she gave Burke the said letter received by her from Alfred W. Cushman and the said Burke carried the letter away with him, and that all of the above is done without her husband's consent or knowledge.

(Signed) MARIA N. SANTOS.

Mrs. Francis's Story.

Barnstable SS. Provincetown, January 11, 1911.

Before me, Walter Welsh, one of the Justices of the Peace within and for the County of Barnstable, personally appeared Annie A. Francis of Provincetown, Mass., who, being duly sworn, deposes and says that she is the wife of John A. Francis of Provincetown, Mass., and that she resides at No. 7 Bradford street; that her husband is a registered voter in Provincetown and that there was delivered to her house a circular letter from Alfred W. Cushman asking her husband to express his choice for United States Senator by marking a cross on said circular opposite the name he favored; that on January 9, 1911, Manuel Davis came to her house and asked for the letter received from Mr. Cushman, and that she gave it and carried it away with him; that her husband did not give her permission to mark the cross for him and that when he returned he objected to what had been done by her in allowing Davis to take the letter and also to the signing of the same by her; that she knew there were several names on the letter, but that she did not remember the names.

Signed ANNIE A. FRANCIS.
Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Barnstable SS. January 11, 1911.

Personally appeared the above named Annie A. Francis and made oath that the foregoing statement subscribed by her is true. Before me,

Justice of the Peace.

Emily Santos, mother of Joseph and John Santos, registered voters in Provincetown, residing at No. 22 Franklin street, said that she had received two letters, sent to her sons, to Manuel Davis under like circumstances on January 10.

Another mother who swears she also had given up her son's letter was Mrs. Amelia L. Cook, of Provincetown. She makes affidavit that Manuel Davis called at her home when her son Manuel F. Cook was at sea, that he represented having been deputized by Representative Cushman to collect the letters, and she, believing him, gave him the letter addressed to her son.

Such affidavits might be multiplied indefinitely. Those given are typical and make a chain of evidence that will be conclusive for the average Third District voters. Resentment at such methods is general, and Burke, Davis and their coworkers are in a state now fearing they have been a bit too bold and ventured a little too far.

How to Treat Eczema

The old method of treating eczema and similar skin diseases as blood disorders is being rapidly replaced by the new medical compound called Cadum, which is applied direct to the affected parts. It do troys the disease-producing germs, and begins healing at once. The itching stops soon after Cadum is applied, and the most stubborn cases are helped in a remarkably short time. Other skin troubles, such as sores, psoriasis, ulcers, ringworm, itching piles, pimples, eruptions, etc., are quickly relieved by this wonderful compound. 10c and 25c a box.

Charge Plot to Steal $55,000 Pearl Necklace.

PARIS—An American named Weston alias Albert Cripps, has been arrested at the Grand Hotel for attempting to steal a pearl necklace of the value of $55,000, which he ordered Van Vourzeur of the Rue de la Paix to send to the hotel for inspection. When it arrived he told the messenger he wished to take it to another room to show his wife. The messenger refused to permit this, whereupon Cripps threatened him with a revolver. A struggle ensued which aroused the hotel and Cripps was taken into custody.

Widow Defeats Blériot.

PARIS—Louis Blériot, the former airman and now a manufacturer of flying machines, advanced to the late Captain Ferber $1,000 for aviation experiments. In consideration of the receipt of this sum Ferber engaged to pay back $2,000 if he won the Deutsch-Archdeacon prize of $5,000 or made $10,000 by aviation. Henri Farman won the prize mentioned and Captain Ferber was killed while flying at Boulogne in 1909. Blériot brought suit against Captain Ferber's widow for the $1,000. The court non-suited him.

Whistler Picture Found.

LONDON—It is now reported that Whistler's third and missing picture of Lady Meux, who left an immense estate and a great brewery to Vice-Admiral Sir Hedworth Lambton on condition that he change his name to Meux and bear the arms of that family, and who bequeathed Lord Nelson's sword to Lord Charles Beresford, is in the Freer collection in America.

Play a Parable of Tears.

PARIS—"La Vail Homme," is the name of a new play in five acts by Mona. Georgette Porte Riche that caused a sensation at the first performance last night at the Renaissance Theatre. The Journal says: "It is a parable of tenderness, tears and anguish, which has conquered Paris and must conquer humanity."

Publish Wagner Autobiography.

BERLIN—It is announced from Frankfort that the memoirs of Wagner, written by himself and covering the period from 1868 to 1873, will shortly be published. The preface, written by the master, says the memoirs were written at the urgent request of his wife.

11 Bombay Rioters Slain.

BOMBAY—In consequence of disturbances which attended the Mohammedan festival of Moharrum, the police forbade a procession that was to have been held. A mob stormed the police and the troops fired a volley, killing eleven and wounding fourteen.

Attempt to Kill an Author.

VIBORG, Finland—An attempt was made upon the life of Leonide Andreeff, a well-known author of the Gorky school, by a servant employed in his house. The servant fired a revolver at the writer, but the bullet failed to reach him.

Kaiser Aids Zeppelin.

BERLIN—A Zeppelin balloon hall is to be built at Potsdam not far from the new palace. Emperor William is interested in the project, and personally intervened to overcome difficulties in the purchase of the site.

12 Sailors' Bodies Ashore.

BREMERHAVEN—Seven of the bodies of the twelve sailors who were drowned when the German steamship Maria Rusz was sunk off Nordeney lightship, were washed ashore to-day.

New Opera by Richard Strauss.

BERLIN—A theatrical paper publishes the text of Richard Strauss's new opera, "Der Rosenkavalier." It describes it as a three-act comedy, the scenes of which are laid in old Vienna at the time of Maria Therese.

Argentine Meat in Vienna.

VIENNA—Fifteen tons of Argentine meat was put on the market to-day. The public rushed to buy it. All was sold in the forenoon, bringing from twelve to eighteen cents a pound.

FOUND POISON IN TAYLOR HOUSE

Police officers who made the raid on the house of Francis Asbury, alias William H. Taylor, colored, now on trial, charged with assault and battery on his white wife and forcibly detaining her, to-day told of the finding of Mrs. Taylor chained to the wall and corroborated in part the story of brutality told by Mrs. Taylor when on the witness stand yesterday. The trial of Taylor was resumed to-day before Judge Stevens and a jury. The brother of Mrs. Taylor was in the court room. He is here to take care of his sister after the trial.

Fastened with Chain.

At to-day's hearing Policeman James F. Concannon of the East Dedham street police station told of making the raid on Taylor's flat in Middlesex street.

"We found the woman fastened with a chain about her neck about four feet long. One end of it was fastened into the wall. The woman was in a serious condition. Her eyes were swollen and her head was cut.

"We loosened her fastenings and she rushed to the kitchen. There she grabbed up some bread and began to eat ravenously. Then she got some water and she drank great quantities of it. She showed plainly that she had been without food and water for a prolonged time."

Officer Concannon then told of his observing the Taylor house for about four or five weeks before the raid took place.

"I frequently saw Taylor go into the house accompanied by four or five negroes," testified Concannon. "I saw colored women accost men on the street and take them to that house. I have seen the defendant's wife accost men and take them to the same place. This continued for a period of four or five weeks prior to the raid."

Sergeant Murray Monroe testified to finding a bottle in the Taylor house. He had it analyzed by the State Board of Health. Charles H. Hickey, a chemist for the State board, testified that it contained an aconite solution with aicotine, a violent poison.

Minister Testifies.

At 10 o'clock the State rested and Patrolman William Macbeth of Station 5 was called by Lawyer Benjamin for the defence. He said he went to Taylor's house with agents of the Watch and Ward Society to get clothing claimed by a young woman. He said he had known Taylor's wife for four years as Margaret Jackson.

Rev. William H. Beers, a white clergyman, of the Morgan Memorial Chapel, testified that he married the couple September 26, 1910. Three weeks after the marriage, so he testified, Taylor and the woman came to him and in the presence of Taylor she recited her experiences.

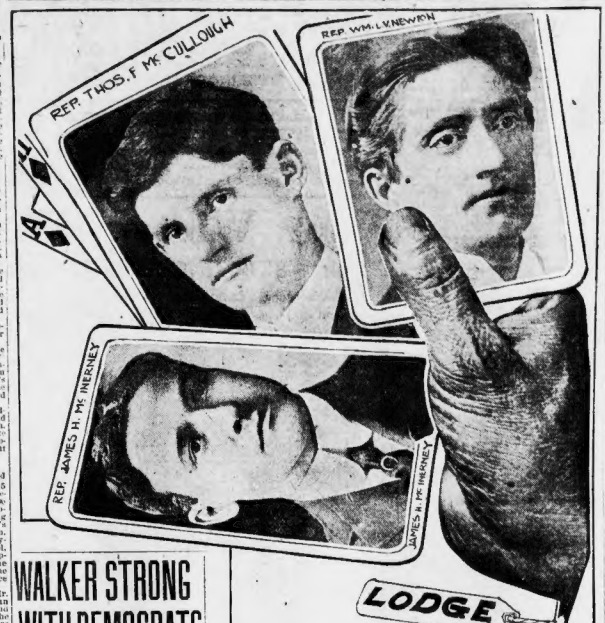
"She pointed to Taylor," testified Mr. Beers, and said, 'He is more to me than anyone else. He has spent $600 on me and treated me better than my own folks. The girl told me that a dear friend of hers had sent her some poison with which she was to kill Taylor, but she had never done it."

On cross-examination Rev. Mr. Beers said the woman did not tell him that she was forced to go to him and tell what she did. He also denied he advised Taylor to shoot her or bind her.

Patrolman Nicholas B. Tangley of Station 5 said that Taylor asked him into his store once and showed him some letters Taylor said his wife had written. He didn't consider them any of his business. Taylor's wife came out from the back of the store. She had a black eye and said Taylor "did it."

James H. Taylor, the defendant, took the stand and said he met his wife on Albion street, June 8. They were married September 26. Later he moved to No. 30 Middlesex street.

WATCH THESE DEMOCRATS!



Here are the three Democrats who were elected to the House as Democrats, on a Democratic platform, but who are classed as Lodge men by Lodge leaders. The men themselves say they "don't know." McInerney, it is said, was saved from serving a term in prison by Senator Lodge. If this be so, there is an additional reason why Senator Lodge should not be re-elected. Why should Senator Lodge interfere with the course of Justice? It is no part of the duty of a United States Senator to keep convicted men out of prison!

WALKER STRONG WITH DEMOCRATS

Signs point strongly toward Joseph Walker, the Republican Speaker of the House, as the logical candidate against Henry Cabot Lodge for the United States Senate.

Since the conference of the Democratic members of the Legislature yesterday, at which the names of sixteen Democrats were considered for the party nomination, Speaker Walker's name again loomed up as that of the one man to oppose Lodge with any hope of success.

Democratic leaders, recalling that the party platform in the late election, specifically pledged Democratic legislators to vote against Lodge, but not against any other Republican, point out that Walker comes pretty close to the accepted definition of a Progressive Republican. He is for the direct election of Senators by the people, is in accord with Democratic progressive ideas on other subjects. His confident fairness to his party opponents in the Legislature makes him more acceptable to many Democrats as a candidate against Lodge than any other Republican mentioned.

Walker, they admit, has come out for re-election of Lodge, but they say this was because of pressure brought to bear on him, and that they believe he can be made to see that his duty to the State is more important than his party allegiance to Lodge—who has displayed open hostility to him.

These Democrats point out that it is obvious the Democrats have not votes enough to elect a member of their party against Lodge, and that the Anns Republicans are unwilling to co-operate with them in the election of a Democrat. For these reasons, they say, it is the duty of the Democrats to defeat Lodge by voting for a Progressive Republican.

In view of the failure of the Democratic conference to agree on a candidate, other Democratic leaders believe it to be the business of Lodge in the Legislature to deadlock the election until a bill for a preference vote of the people of the State on their choice for Senator can be passed. They are confident that such a vote would reveal an overwhelming popular sentiment against Lodge and that he would either withdraw or be forced to retire from the contest.

The action of the anti-Lodge Republican caucus called for 3 o'clock this afternoon by Representative Russell Wood of Cambridge is being awaited with interested by the leaders on both sides.

James B. Carroll of Springfield and Charles S. Hamlin to-day sent word to the State House that they must not be considered candidates for Senator.

A Want Advt. is often the road to fortune.

CLARK DEFENDS PARTY'S STAND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A statement outlining the view of the Democratic party in the House as to the meaning of the recent rules fight and setting forth the precedent that would have been set if the Democrats had voted to overrule Speaker Cannon at that time, has been issued by Representative Champ Clark.

CHORE BOY "SALTS" COWS EXTERNALLY

HAMMOND, Ind., Jan. 13.—Arthur Mannix, a farmer living near Goodland, recently hired a chore boy to "salt" calves. The boy took a quart of salt and rubbed it all over the animals. Several salt hungry horses in the same pasture ran after the calves till the latter dropped to the ground from exhaustion.

HONDURAN REBELS RESUME ATTACK

PUERTO BARRIOS, Guatemala, Jan. 13.—Reinforcements reached the revolutionary general, Bonilla, at Celba, Honduras, to-day and his attack on that city was renewed. Fierce fighting was reported. Trujillo has been captured by the revolutionists and is being used as a base of operations.

VANDERBILT WHIP MAY WED TO-DAY

Charles H. Wilson, stable manager and whip for Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, and Miss Josephine Delehanty, daughter of Deputy Thomas F. Delehanty of the election board, may be married to-day. The groom-to-be took out a marriage license yesterday in this city but neither he nor Miss Delehanty would say just when the ceremony would be performed although they admitted it would be very soon.

Miss Delehanty is a Catholic and Wilson said that as he had been divorced from one of his former wives, no priest would perform the ceremony. He intimated they would be united by a Justice of the peace.

At her home, No. 667 Meridian street, East Boston, Miss Delehanty said:

"We have filed our marriage intention and obtained the license. We have not as yet been married, but will be shortly and when or where I cannot say at this time. That is all there is to say about it, and all the reports in newspapers that might be put before me could not change me one iota."

KANSAS RAINY DAISY SKIRTS MUST HANG WAY BELOW PATELLA

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 13.—Representative Cones blushingly admits that the sights he saw in tights at the first and only musical comedy show he ever attended are responsible for his introduction of a bill in the Legislature to prohibit the wearing of tights or short skirts on the stage or in public by any woman. The bill provides that "no female shall appear in public wearing a skirt that hangs less than four inches below the patella."

13 BILLS FILED BY THE MAYOR

Mayor Fitzgerald filed two bills in the Senate and three in the House to-day.

One bill limits the amount a politcal committee may spend in one year to $10,000, a candidate $5,000.

Another bill turns all of Boston's tubercular patients now in the city's care over to State officers and boards to be authorized to care for them.

Cities and towns are to be permitted to pay their debts by proportionate annual payments instead of establishing a sinking fund in another of the bills.

Another of Mayor Fitzgerald's bills requires the Police Commissioner to make a report annually to the Mayor. A bill authorizes a covered passageway over Massachusetts avenue, a bill to limit the number of beds the trustees of the new hospital for consumptives in Boston may have in other hospitals to 100, and a bill to extend the term of service of the Rapid Transit Commissioners to July 1, 1911, are the principal of the remainder.

EDDY HEIRS FIGHT $2,000,000 CHURCH BEQUEST

Directors of the Christian Science Church Surprised at Announcement of Will Contest.

Directors of the Christian Science Church admitted they were surprised at the news of the filing in the Probate Court at Concord, N. H., of a petition by the direct heirs of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, praying for a construction of her last will and testament. They acknowledged that the filing of the petition meant the opening of what promises to be one of the most famous will contests to legal history, and which may invalidate Mrs. Eddy's $2,000,000 bequest to the "Mother Church," in this city, but refused to comment further on the news.

The heirs, George W. Glover, Mrs. Eddy's son by her first husband, and her adopted son, Dr. J. Foster Eddy, signed the petition as the result of a long legal study as to the merits of the case, prepared by former Senator William P. Chandler of New Hampshire.

Claim Bequest Invalid.

In the opinion of the case, prepared by Mr. Chandler, who was assisted by Professor Hannis Taylor, former minister to Spain and professor of international law at George Washington University, the validity of Mrs. Eddy's bequest to the "Mother Church" city is attacked, under the statutes of Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

In the opinion it is stated by Mr. Chandler that for some time before she made the will Mrs. Eddy was completely under the control of designing, carefully fostered ay those about her, that she was possessed of the belief that her son and adopted son were using "malicious animal magnetism" against her and that this "malicious animal magnetism," would influence them to attempt to break her will.

A letter written by Mrs. Eddy, in which she accused the heads of this and also Wisconsin lawyers had been demoralized by "M. M.," was the Christian Scientist's allusion to "malicious animal magnetism," is appended to the opinion.

Church Gifts Limited.

Under the laws of New Hampshire, gifts to churches are limited to benefactions that produce an income of $6,000 yearly. In Massachusetts the limit is $2,000.

Before proceeding with the case, Mr. Chandler submitted the facts bearing on it to Professor Taylor, who is a famous legal expert, and to W. L. Chambers, retired Washington lawyer, formerly chief justice of the Samoan High Court and a member of the Spanish Treaty Claims Commission. Other attorneys in the case are John W. Kelly of Portsmouth, N. H., and Dewitt C. Hews, of Concord, who were associated with Mr. Chandler in the famous "next friend" litigation against Mrs. Eddy a few years ago.

The petitioners also ask for an injunction against any disposition of the property in question pending legal decision as to the validity of the disputed clause.

The heirs of the petitioners were made at the time of the settlement of the "next friend" litigation that Mrs. Eddy would not contest the will is disposed of by the assertion then when it was given out that she supposed that the will violated any law.

"M. A. M." in Case.

In requesting Professor Taylor's opinion on the question whether the church can take the legacy under New Hampshire law prohibiting a bequest to a church of over $6,000 annually, Mr. Chandler, in the production of a letter, intimates that long prior to the making of her will or to the execution of the contested instrument, she possessed of delusions and believed that her son George had become possessed by an evil spirit.

Senator Chandler's letter to Professor Taylor said in part:

"Prior to the making by Mrs. Eddy of her will on September 13, 1901, she had taken up the delusion that her son George had become possessed for an evil spirit, under the influence of what she called 'malicious animal magnetism,' and had become hostile to her, and she had declared her intention to disinherit him, and she had also gone on to conceive the same delusion concerning her adopted son, Dr. Foster Eddy, and had kept them both out of her presence and away from the city of her residence, and had allowed to be expelled Dr. Foster Eddy from the Christian Science religious body. I give to you herewith a copy of a letter from her making the charge against her son George.

To Foil "Enemies."

"Concord, Sept. 22, 1880.

"Dear Student: I see this morning the purpose of the enemy: If to break my will at my decease, if this the latter can be accomplished. My son is M. will sports be a victor at law, and M. A. M. will influence him to break my will. Now this I enjoin on you. Inquire of the best copyright lawyers out of Boston you can find, if I can assign my copyright of 'Science and Health and Unity of Good' to one who could hold it if my will was broken, and never name this party in my will or name him to whom it is assigned—whichever would make it legal. Find this out at once and the way of conveyance of any copyright so that the will should be disputed or broken, the publishing of 'Science and Health and Unity of Good' could go on without hindrance.

"I shall assign the copyright of these books to one, or two perhaps, of my students equal shares, who, I think, I can trust, or will do the best as publishers on receipt of these books.

"The next delay to ask a lawyer or judge of the United States Circuit Court all about this question of a legal conveyance of a copyright so that the ownership will take place after the decease of the present owner. The conveyance to be made outside of a will, so that if the will was broken the assignment would be valid in basic, affectionate[ly].

"M. B. G. EDDY."

"Be perfectly silent to all but legal parties about what I have written. The Boston lawyers whom I have employed are demoralized by M. A. M. Note this.

"In connection with her conception of those delusions and her complete abandonment of herself to them she passed into the close custody and control of men and women who were alternately subservient and dominating, their customary method of control being to create in her mind terror of the machinations of the M. A. M."

The opinion quotes the statutes of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, limiting church gifts and goes on:

Mrs. Eddy Deceived.

"It is difficult to understand how anyone could have imagined, in the presence of the positive prohibitions of such statutes, that a testatrix domiciled in New Hampshire and governed by its laws could give by will to a single church in Massachusetts governed by its laws a single bequest of nearly $2,000,000—a sum nearly twenty times as great as that permitted as a gift to any one church by the law of New Hampshire. As that State was the domicile of the testatrix its law determines, in the first instance, her capacity to give by will to a particular purpose. As the statutes of New Hampshire positively forbade the testatrix to make so large a gift to a single church, it is, of course, void. The right to make such a statute and to enforce it belong to New Hampshire alone.

"Moreover, if the bequest was not void for lack of power in the testatrix to make it, still it would be void by reason of the lack of power on the part of the legatee, a Massachusetts corporation, to take it. The Massachusetts statute is much more severe than that of New Hampshire.

"The origin of the so-called Mother Church in Boston is given in Mrs. Eddy's own words; then the opinion declares that whatever capacity the board of directors of the Mother Church has to act as a corporate body, and as such to receive and hold property for such voluntary associations derived from chapter 37, Massachusetts Revised Laws of 1902, section 10 of which is above quoted.

Violation of Law.

"It is hardly necessary to add," the opinion continues, "that it is impossible for this voluntary association to derive corporate existence from chapter 37 and at the same time to hold property in defiance of it.

"If it be true that the testatrix has defied the law of New Hampshire by attempting to give to a single church the income on a vast sum of money to be used for all time by it as 'residuary legatee, for the purpose of more effectually promoting and extending the religion of Christian Science as taught by me,' what is the legal consequence of such a violation of positive law? There is no ambiguity; the gift is to a single church, for a single purpose.

"That church is to maintain for all time a propaganda of a new and peculiar form of religious belief. There is no pretence that this endowment is for any charitable or artistic or educational purpose. Neither charity, nor art, nor education have any place in the scheme whatever. The testatrix designed to create a vast and perpetual endowment for the purpose of 'promoting and extending the religion of Christian Science as taught by me.' It was just such perpetual endowments in the hands of a single church for the propagation of any form of religious belief that the statutes of New Hampshire and Massachusetts designed to make impossible.

Bequest Passes to Heirs.

"Therefore, the prohibitions of these statutes fix the stamp of nullity upon the residuary clause. First, because the testatrix was forbidden expressly to make such a gift; second, because the legatee was forbidden expressly to receive such gift. The legal result inevitably is that the residuary clause of the will is null and void. As to the void gift, the testatrix died intestate and its subject matter passed, on her death, to her next of kin under the New Hampshire statutes of distribution.

"There will be no claim made that the heir-at-law of the testatrix ever saw her will, or copy of it, prior to her death. Neither her heirs or their representatives were ever informed as to its contents prior to that time. They had no right to assume that she would attempt to make a disposition of her property contrary to the express provisions of the statutes of New Hampshire and Massachusetts. If they had been so informed it would have been impossible for them to legalize any such gift upon her part by contract in any form. An heir-at-law cannot authorize his ancestor by any form of contract to make such a will as the law of the domicil forbids.

GROUNDS OF EDDY WILL CONTEST

That church (The Christian Science) is to maintain for all time a propaganda of a new and peculiar form of religious belief. There is no pretence that this endowment is for charitable, or artistic or educational purpose. Neither charity, nor art, nor education have any place in the scheme whatever. The testatrix designed to create a vast and perpetual endowment for the purpose of "promoting and extending the religion of Christian Science, as taught by me."

It was just such perpetual endowments in the hands of a single church for the propagation of any form of religious belief that the statutes of New Hampshire and Massachusetts designed to make impossible. Therefore, the prohibitions of these statutes fix the stamp of nullity upon the residuary clause (1) because the testatrix was forbidden expressly to make such gift; (2) because the legatee was forbidden expressly to receive such gift.

The legal result inevitably is that the residuary clause of the will is null and void. As to the void gift the testatrix died intestate and the subject matter passed on her death to her next of kin.—Extract from opinion of three leading lawyers on Mrs. Eddy's will.

INDIGESTION, SOURNESS, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL STOMACH MISERY GOES.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sourest, acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, Nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on each 50 cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Billiousness and many other bad symptoms, and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and lifesize your meals, is mighty handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

FLAT DENIAL BY GOODWIN

Miss Maud Lannon of St. Louis, whom Nat C. Goodwin is said to have called "Baby Doll" and other pet names when he was playing a three weeks' engagement in that city in the Summer of 1909, is young enough and pretty enough to justify admiring epithets, according to dispatches from St. Louis.

When the divorce proceedings which Edna Goodrich (Mrs. Nat No. 4), has instituted began to assume shape mention was made from New York of some St. Louis "woman," as she was termed, who was suspected by Mrs. Goodwin of having impressed Nat's susceptible nature.

Then the scene shifted to St. Louis, where Herman Roth, counsel for Mrs. Goodwin, arranged for dispositions to be taken behind closed doors from witnesses who were familiar with Nat's actions in St. Louis in 1909.

She's Only Eighteen.

Jack Harris, a chauffeur, testified that Nat took Miss Lannon on motor rides, called her "baby doll," "dear," "honey," "darling" and other pet names. "A lot of mushy stuff" was the way Harris described some of the conversation he overheard from his chauffeur's seat.

From the Lambs' Club in New York Nat has denied all this. He says he never called any girl "baby doll."

"I had not intended," he said to a reporter, "to make any public statement regarding charges made in my wife's action for divorce.

"I don't want to fight a woman—never did, never will. These divorce proceedings may go on to their ultimate end and then we shall see who is aggrieved. I would have been content to wait the end in silence were it not that so much that is untrue has been said. I mean not only against me, but against others, particularly women who are innocent, not only as to the act, but in thought and intent.

"The story that came out of St. Louis last night connecting my name with that of a young woman whom I am supposed to have called 'Baby Doll' is cruel in the extreme. She was in the company in which I was playing in Delmar Park, in St. Louis. My acquaintance with her was very slight. I don't believe I ever spoke a dozen words to her off the stage until these were on business matters. The story that Miss Goodrich's counsel has obtained the testimony of a chauffeur and two waiters in Delmar Park against me is absurd.

Trouble Began in Canada.

"This trouble began in Canada when my wife visited me there. From a man in whom I had the most implicit trust she heard a lot of ugly things which resulted in the divorce proceedings. These stories were untrue.

"Women's minds are receptive, and women are hysterical and impulsive, too ready to believe at times, even when their own happiness is at stake, and therefore these divorce proceedings."

But dispatches to-day from St. Louis give interesting description of Miss Lannon. She is only eighteen years old. In this she has the advantage of the pretty Mrs. Goodwin by nine years in point of youth.

She is undeniably pretty. She lives at No. 3,557 Clark avenue, and has an older sister, Miss Julia Lannon.

Miss Maud began her theatrical career as a chorus girl at Delmar Garden, St. Louis. When the Delmar Stock Company was organized she was given a minor part. She was a member of that company when Nat played his new famous three weeks' engagement at Delmar Garden in the Summer of 1909.

Trouble Began in Toronto.

Several weeks ago Herman Roth, Mrs. Goodwin's attorney, came to St. Louis. That was just after Mrs. Goodwin had gone to Toronto, Canada, to surprise Nat, who was in temporary retirement there. It was said that Mrs. Goodwin discovered matters in Toronto that turned the real surprise upon her.

At any rate, her lawyer began to take steps toward securing divorce evidence. One of those steps was to St. Louis. There he called upon Miss Maud Lannon. She was asked if she would make affidavit as to her relations with Goodwin here in 1909. She hesitated, but told Roth she would furnish him with testimony if her name could be kept out of the suit. Roth would not agree to that, saying it was immaterial whether she made affidavit or not.

Last Sunday Roth went to St. Louis again. It began preparations for taking depositions. On Tuesday depositions were taken behind closed doors before Charles F. Weiler, a notary. Roth represented Mrs. Goodwin. Nat's side was in the hands of John H. Edwards, of Abbott, Edwards & Wilson, in whose office the depositions were taken.

It was then that Jack Harris, the chauffeur, proved to be star witness. He said Goodwin was exceptionally attentive to the fair Miss Lannon. He described the joyrides, as mentioned above.

Walter Price, head waiter at Delmar Garden that Summer, testified to serving drinks to Goodwin and Miss Lannon in the tent in which Goodwin was lodged during his garden engagement.

Before he left St. Louis Roth was careful to state that no co-respondent has yet been named by Mrs. Goodwin.

Indignant denials from Goodwin and on behalf of Miss Maud Lannon followed the publication of some of the deposition testimony.

Miss Lannon, Named as Goodwin's "Baby Doll"

MISS MAUD LANNON

BIG WEDDING FOR MISS MOROSINI

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Miss Giulia P. Morosini, daughter of the late Giovanni P. Morosini, was married to Arthur Maurice Werner in Somerville, N. J. There was a double ceremony. A civil marriage was performed first by W. R. Sutphen of Somerville, and the religious service was read afterward by the Rev. Dr. Nathaniel Brooks of No. 38 West Forty-fourth street, Bayonne, N. J. The only witnesses were Mrs. Joseph Benedicks, a sister of Mr. Werner, and Giovanni P. Morosini, brother of the bride.

The parlor of the Somerville Hotel was the scene of the wedding. It was the desire of both Mr. and Mrs. Werner that their wedding be kept an absolute secret, so no one was taken into their confidence until yesterday. At that time Mr. Morosini and Mrs. Benedicks were asked to accompany the couple for an automobile ride. At that time neither had an idea where they were to go.

Birthday of Both.

Yesterday was the birthday of both bride and bridegroom. As has been her custom for years, Miss Morosini invited a few of her most intimate friends to dinner at her home, Elmhurst, Riverdale, last evening. While the house had been elaborately decorated with flowers and palms, no suspicion of the surprise intended for them entered the minds of any of the guests until the conclusion of the dinner, when Mr. Werner introduced their hostess as his wife.

Mr. Werner was well known to New Yorkers some years ago as one of the honor men of the police department. He was one of the four original members of the traffic squad and won honorable mention several times for stopping runaways.

It was on such an occasion that Mr. Werner first met Miss Morosini. He had been assigned to the Kingsbridge station and the beat he patrolled on horseback included the speedway. While on duty there about five years ago Mr. Werner spied one morning a runaway team that was being driven by Miss Morosini. Werner stopped the horses.

In the excitement Werner disappeared before Miss Morosini learned his name. Her father, in order to show gratitude to the man who had saved his daughter from injury if not death, went to the Kingsbridge station the next day with Miss Morosini, who picked out Werner from among the platoon of mounted men.

THREAT TO QUIT FISHERY DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—With Sir Edward Morris, Premier of Newfoundland, threatening to depart from Washington in a rage and the other Canadian fishery envoys incensed at the State Department, the situation regarding the settlement of the Newfoundland fisheries dispute is in accordance with the findings of The Hague tribunal received a new turn to-day.

The cause of the trouble is a brief but pointed statement issued to the press by the State Department. It is the inference a strongly made that the United States won a victory in the negotiations. It is said that Secretary of State Knox dictated it.

When L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, was shown a copy he indicated his approval and could scarcely be restrained from repudiating it.

Sir Edward Morris abruptly declared he would leave Washington. The Canadian delegation before only one point in the fisheries dispute has been clearly settled and this was a victory for the Dominion. This point was fishing on Sunday within the Gloucester fishermen desired and which was surrendered by the United States yesterday. The right to base licenses in treaty waters and the prohibition of purse seines in fishing are points yet to be settled.

A TIMELY WARNING.

Backache, headache, dizzy spells and distressing urinary troubles warn you of hidden danger—of silent kidney diseases.

Act in time by curing them like this: says Doan's Kidney Pills.

John C. Nolan, 173 K St. South Boston, Mass., says: "I had backache, pains in my head, dizzy spells and the urine passages terribly irritated with physicians' C Hospital and finally went to Instead of getting better, I grew worse and left the hospital entirely discouraged. Luckily I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and was completely cured. There has been no sign of kidney trouble now for five years."

MRS. TAFT SENDS DOLL FOR A BAZAAR

The pastor and women parishioners of St. John's Catholic Church were much pleased to receive a cordial letter to-day from Mrs. Taft, in which she wished them success at their coming bazaar planned to liff a $10,000 debt from the new parochial school. Mrs. Taft said she would be pleased to name a doll to be offered at the bazaar. The doll will be selected soon and the White House name will be kept secret in a safe until after the bazaar. All who wish may guess the name given to the doll by Mrs. Taft in a nominal fee per each guess. The first to name the mannikin correctly will receive it.

GIRL MURDERED ON CENTRAL WHARF

Police Seek Strange Man Who Was Seen Standing by Body.

The body of the girl was allowed to lay in the passageway until Medical Examiner Magrath viewed it. This is Dr. Magrath's statement:

"The girl was too young to have died from natural causes. But I am unable to say at this time just what the exact cause of death was. I shall perform an autopsy as soon as possible.

Signs of Violence.

"The only exterior signs of violence were bruises on her nose and lip. A middle upper tooth and the incisor next to it were missing. They may have been knocked out by a blow.

"The girl may have been bruised by a fall but that is improbable. Her lips were badly swollen. Her shirt waist was torn from her neck at one side.

"The body had been dead less than five hours, probably not more than four hours. That would bring her death to around 5 o'clock a. m."

Leavitt and Alec Nelson, a watchman, both saw a man beside the body. Leavitt told the police about this man and gave a description of him. The police told Leavitt to keep that part of his story quiet.

"I could identify that man if I saw him," declared Leavitt to a reporter of the AMERICAN. "I took a good look at him, because I thought it strange to see him there with the young woman.

Bottle Used as Weapon.

"I do not know what became of the man. Whether the bottle had liquor in it or not I could not tell. The thought that came to me first was that the man had used the bottle as a weapon, but I may have been wrong in that.

"I was on my way to the wharf for a load of goods just before 7 o'clock and as I passed the little alleyway that divides the wharf I glanced in.

"I saw the body of a woman lying about half way down the passageway. She lay on her back, the body being bunched a little to one side and the feet pointing toward the North Station.

Stopped to Investigate.

"I stopped to see what was the matter with her. I didn't know whether she was asleep or frozen.

"I caught hold of her wrist. Her arm hung limp and I lifted it up. Her hand was as cold as ice. I took a look at her face and found that she was dead.

"I am somewhat deaf, so I couldn't telephone the police, but I called a man who was passing and told him to telephone.

"I took only one look at the woman's face. It appeared to be bloated or it may have been battered. I didn't make a close examination of it.

Woman's Dress is Torn.

"The woman looked to be anywhere from twenty-five to thirty years old. She was a brunette. Her shoes were ripped and her dress was torn in some places. She wore a dark skirt."

William Featherstone, a porter employed on the Elevated railroad at the State street station, opposite the wharf where the woman was found dead, said to-day:

"I heard screams down in that direction about 4 o'clock this morning. I think the screams were those of a woman. I thought at the time that it was either a woman or a child crying.

"I did not go down there, because I would not go down there in the night for anything."

The passageway where the body was found divides the wharf into two sections between the buildings of the Gloucester Steamboat Company. It is not more than a yard wide and poorly lighted.

William Pearson, night watchman in the storehouse of the Mellen's Food Company on Central Wharf, was on duty all night but says he heard no suspicious sounds.

Pearson is not permitted to leave the building while on duty and the windows that face on the alley leading from Atlantic avenue to the foot of the wharf, crossing the passageway where the body was discovered, are closed by iron shutters at night, so that it would have been impossible for him to have seen anything in the passageway.

Dr. Donovan's Story.

Dr. William J. Donovan, of the Relief Hospital, who was the first physician to see the woman after her discovery, gave the following statement to an AMERICAN reporter:

"I went in our ambulance in response to a call. We arrived there shortly after 7 o'clock. The woman was lying in a small passageway that leads from the street to the water. There was a bundle of bagging under her head which raised it slightly from the ground. Her hat was lying at one side.

"Her clothes were undisturbed when I saw her and Leavitt said that they were in the same condition when he found her. She was lying on her back with her hands at her side and her feet slightly apart. There were no external evidences of foul play, neither were there any signs of blood on her clothing or her body.

"I applied the usual tests to see if there were any signs of life, but found none. I should say that she was dead less than an hour. I should think that she was a girl about twenty-one years old. She was well nourished, although her clothes were in a poor condition. She had dark hair and wore a short black skirt, a dark coat and black shoes.

"After establishing the face that she was dead I made no further examination of the body."

Watchman Sees Suspect, Too.

Alec Nelson, a watchman for the Eastern Dredging Company, whose post of duty is at the end of Central Wharf, said:

"I was on duty all night, but didn't hear a sound out of the ordinary until some time around 4 o'clock, when the Portland boat came in.

"About five minutes of 7 I started up the wharf to get my paper. As I passed the little alley I saw a man standing in it about half way down. I paid no particular attention to him, as it is not uncommon to see persons in there.

"When I came back in about ten minutes I saw Mr. Leavitt in the alley and the man I had seen on my way out was still there. He was talking to Leavitt. I heard him tell Leavitt that he had at one time worked on the Gloucester boat and that he had been held up and robbed in that very alley. Then a crowd began to gather around the alley and I went on about my business.

"The man was heavy set, apparently about thirty-five years old, and of very dark complexion. He wore overalls, noticed that his fists and overalls were smeared with mud."

Says Girl Was Strangled.

Irving Cunningham, the second mate on the Gloucester, one of the boats that plies between Boston and Gloucester, was one of the first men to look at the girl when her body was discovered. He looked at her carefully. This is his statement he made to a reporter of this newspaper:

"We got here from Gloucester about 7 o'clock. I heard that a murder had been committed on the pier. I went to the spot and saw the girl.

"There were marks on the girl's throat, and in my opinion she had been strangled. I think that she had been knocked down by a blow on the mouth. It looked to me as though the base and water-proofed by a fist and that one of the fingers of the hand had entered the victim's left nostril.

"This nostril was torn from the face. There was a hook in the flesh of from one-half to three-quarters of an inch long. The girl's hair had been torn down in the struggle which, it was plain, had taken place after her death. A switch of the same color among two feet in length lay near the body.

"I hurried back to the Gloucester and got a blanket and placed it over the girl's body.

"I looked at the girl's face and it occurred to me that I had seen her some place before. I do not think that it was in this neighborhood, though. I have been trying to place her, but so far I have been unable to do so.

"I heard some talk about her being an Italian. She was not. She was an American girl, young and had been good looking."

AMPUTATE LEG TO SAVE TUTTLE

As a last resort to save his life, imperiled by blood poisoning, the result of the bite of an insect several years ago, Lucius Tuttle, for years president of the Boston & Maine Railroad, has had his left leg amputated. Today his physician, Dr. Samuel J. Mixter, reported the patient resting comfortably. Mr. Tuttle is sixty-four years old. The news of the operation is a surprise to his friends and acquaintances. Only members of his family knew he was ailing.

Some years ago Mr. Tuttle suffered from the bite of an insect. For a long time his leg refused to heal although its sufferer received the best treatment that money could procure.

A recurrence of the old trouble made the present operation necessary.

BAKLANOFF BACK; WILL SING TO-NIGHT

George Baklanoff, the baritone whose difference with the opera house management prevented him from singing for more than a month, will make his reappearance with the company this evening in one of his greatest roles, that of Rigoletto, in the opera of that name. Baklanoff's vacation has done his voice a world of good, and he expects to surpass all previous performances to-night. During the last month Italian baritone has been in Boston and has spent his time studying new roles. He has learned will appear Lydia Lipkowska as Gilda, a role which she sang at the Metropolitan Opera House last week with Amato and Constantino, the tenor, whose Duke is one of his most popular roles. It is a remarkable cast for this opera since Marques will sing the bass role and Ericsson Leveroni the contralto part of Maddalena.

IN HURRY TO WED; HAVE WRONG LICENSE

Charles Thomas Gilbert of Saginaw, Mich., and Ethel E. Fenner of Waterford, Canada, appeared at the home of the Rev. George W. Bicknell of the First Universalist Church, Cambridge, and exhibited a license from Saginaw and a marked inclination for a hasty marriage. When informed that the license was not valid in Massachusetts, they went to the Cambridge City Hall, secured a new license, returned to the Bicknell residence and were married. The records show Gilbert is twenty-five years old and divorced.

TRY TO COMPROMISE ON CUSTOMS FRAUDS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Secretary MacVeagh has before him offers of compromise aggregating fully $1,000,000 from New York importers of woolens, laces, millinery, silks, etc., who have been suspected of undervaluation frauds upon the customs. One of the offers alone is said to carry a compromise of more than $300,000. Since a systematic investigation of the frauds began several weeks ago, the offers have been coming in steadily.

DARING HOLD-UP ON THE COMMON

Arthur St. George, employed as a storekeeper at the Custom House in Tremont street, was held up, beaten and robbed on the Common early to-day by three men, two of whom were later identified by John McMillen of the AMERICAN as the ones who had held him up and robbed him of a gold watch and chain and a sum of money at Tremont and Winter streets a week ago. The trio are believed to be members of a gang wanted by the police in connection with a number of holdups which have occurred in the vicinity of the Common during the past month.

The robbers took St. George's overcoat but when they attempted to take the rest of his clothes he put up such a fight that they fled.

Frank Seyter, nineteen, who says he lives at No. 1380 Washington street, was arrested after a chase by Sergeant Mosher and Patrolman Mackesy of the Lagrange street station. St. George's overcoat, the police say, was found in Seyter's possession and about an hour later William Cooper, twenty-six, claiming residence at No. 47 Warren avenue and James Cooper, eighteen, who he lives at No. 822 Dorchester avenue, who the police allege were the other two men concerned in the robbery, were taken into custody. All were locked up at the Lagrange street police station charged with assault and larceny.

The holdup occurred midway between Temple place and Winter street and in the glare of an arc light.

One of the men fronted St. George with a blue gun, behind. The other two jumped upon him. His coat, containing some change and a bunch of keys was wrenched from his body by one of the men. The others started in to take the rest of his clothes when he regained his feet and attacked the three men. The robbers fled toward Park square. St. George kept after Seyter, who, it is alleged, had the overcoat. Sergeant Mosher and Patrolman Mackesy joined in the chase at Park square and succeeded in capturing Seyter.

NEW WITNESS IN WEBB DEATH CASE

WALTHAM, Jan. 13.—Judge Luce heard two additional witnesses in the Pauline C. Webb inquest hearing, Dr. J. A. Day and W. L. Brown.

Dr. Day owns the house where the girl died and Dr. Day was one of the physicians called in consultation during her illness. Medical Examiner West did not appear at this hearing. It is understood that the court informed the examiner that he would like to hear him any day that would be convenient for the examiner.

SHOOTS GIRL AND SELF; SETS CLOTHING AFIRE

make love to her. She repulsed him as best she knew. Still the family suspected no real trouble.

At 8 o'clock to-day Mrs. Vienna, mother of Septimina, was in the kitchen preparing breakfast. Her husband was at work. Candido and the girl were at home. What happened is told by the grief-stricken mother as follows:

Shot Before Mother's Eyes.

"I heard a shot from the front room. Septimina came running into the kitchen. Blood streamed down her face. She screamed: 'Mamma, Mamma!' Before I could move she turned and ran into the side bedroom.

"Then Candido came running through the door of the front room. He was terrible. He had a revolver in one hand. He was muttering to himself. He saw the open door into the bedroom. He ran in there. I ran after him.

"I saw Candido reach down under the bed. He dragged Septimina out from under the bed by one leg. She screamed. She shrieked. Before my eyes he shot her. She lay still on the floor. Candido turned toward me and I ran outdoors, screaming."

At that minute two boys, driving a provision wagon, saw the mother. They ran into the house. They found the girl on the bedroom floor. They carried her out to their wagon and drove full-speed to East Boston Relief Hospital.

Surgeons found two bullet wounds in the girl's head and one through her right ground. It was found in the cellar by a policeman. I don't know why Uncle shot Mina except that he wanted to marry her and Mamma would not let him. We have been getting letters about four months, having come from Portugal. My uncle lived with us and came here when we did."

Candido was found in the cellar by a policeman. I don't know why Uncle shot Mina except that he wanted to marry her and Mamma would not let him. We have been getting letters about four months, having come from Portugal. My uncle lived with us and came here when we did."

Meanwhile someone told a patrolman. He telephoned to the East Boston police station. Lieutenant Daniel J. Sweeney and five policemen went to the house. They found Mrs. Vienna and neighbors there, hysterical. Candido was nowhere to be seen. Lieutenant Sweeney opened the cellar door. He was nearly suffocated by the cloud of smoke which burst into the kitchen.

Groping his way down the stairs, Sweeney, followed by other policemen, spied a flicker of flame in one corner. They found Candido groaning on the cellar floor. He was a terrible sight. His trousers and the lower part of his coat were burned from his body. His legs and hips were seared by fire. Flames were eating the clothing on the upper part of his body.

The police stripped the rest of Candido's clothing from him and took him through a cellar window to the street. An ambulance hurried him to the East Boston Relief Hospital, where his niece was already on an operating table.

Examination showed that Candido had sent two bullets into his head before setting himself on fire. The surgeons said that the burns alone would cause death.

Sister's Story of Tragedy.

How she struggled with her uncle, trying to prevent him from shooting her sister Septimina a second time, was graphically told to an AMERICAN reporter today by Beatrice Vienna, eleven years old.

"I was standing in the kitchen when I heard my uncle and Septimina talking loud. They talked for some time and then I saw him take a revolver from his pocket, point it toward my sister and fire. Mina said 'Oh!' and put her head to her head. I saw blood running down her face and she ran to the side room, where the bed was. My uncle started for her and I got between them and tried to push him out of the way, but he ran by me. I tried to protect Mina, but he would not let me. She ran into the room and crawled under the bed, but Uncle Candido reached under and pulled her out.

"I saw the gun again and became frightened and started to run out, when I heard another shot and a groan. I knew that my uncle had shot my sister again. A minute later I heard two more shots and a door slam.

"I ran into the house and I saw my sister carried out with her face covered with blood. My uncle was not

Medals Awarded This Cod Liver Oil for Supremacy at Various Foreign Fairs and Expositions

PURE NORWEGIAN

COD LIVER OIL

For Pulmonary Consumption and All Wasting Diseases

Medical authorities in this country as well as abroad regard the pure oil of the cod liver as of the utmost value for the treatment of

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM AND GOUT

Also In PULMONARY CONSUMPTION and All Wasting Diseases

It has been in use continuously since 1766, and each year seems to come into greater favor. It is recommended by physicians because of its great nutritive value, and because it is so easily absorbed into the system. We have for a number of years recommended the Pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil and several preparations made with it because we have great confidence in its good effects. We have taken pains to select, and can guarantee that the oil we sell is the purest and finest possible to obtain. We import it ourselves from the fisheries in Aelsund, Norway. It has received many medals of superiority in exhibitions abroad; and the price is no higher than is being asked for some of the inferior grades. This is the season of coughs and colds, from which more serious ills result. It would be well to safeguard your system with this tried and proven remedy. It will make flesh, aid digestion, equally good for young or old, and will positively stay the ravages of any wasting diseases.

FIELD 'SEEING' GOTHAM SHOWS

City Hall is following with keen interest advices from New York's White Way which tell of the progress made by Colonel "Dick" Field, Mayor Fitzgerald's assistant secretary, as a censor of the drama. Thus far the advices have been reassuring, but City Hall knows that one never can tell what may happen.

This is Mr. Field's first incursion as a censor into the Gotham theatrical jungle, and a few of City Hall who claim experience on the Great White Way wondered how he would demean himself on his initial effort.

The very first bulletins were reassuring. They were that Mr. Field had established his headquarters and base of supplies at the Hotel Knickerbocker, which is in the very centre of the present G. W. W.

Doing His Duty Well.

Further advices show that Mr. Field is fulfilling his duty as a censor with a devotion not often shown by municipal servants. No theatre where there is an entertainment likely to be looked for presentation in this city is too far away for him to reach and his researches thus far have led him from Hurtig & Seamon's burlesque house in the wilds of Harlem to the Garden Theatre, "Way Down Town," with the most daring excursions on the side down to the Bowery Theatre on the Lower East Side and over to Miner's Eighth Avenue Theatre on the West Side.

Needs No Guardian.

From the Knickerbocker Colonel Field found himself within easy distance of the Columbia and the Murray Hill burlesque houses, the New York Theatre, where Miss Anna Held and her beauty chorus disport themselves; the Broadway, where Lew Fields presents a pulchritudinous chorus and lots of it, and the big vaudeville houses.

"Gosh," DeLeon, second deputy of police in New York, was instructed by timorous friends of Colonel Field to watch over him during his stay, but the new censor has demonstrated that he didn't need any guardianship or chaperonage.

John Casey, the former censor, had the reputation of watching closely New York plays with an eye single only to the interests of stern morality. They do say that Colonel Field's vision is a trifle less stern.

LATEST FASHION FADS will be told by their creator, Lady Duff-Gordon, the world's greatest modiste, in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Strength Comes

Not From What You Eat, But From What You Digest.

A Tablet Digests a Meal. Trial Package Free.

Most people eat most foods without discrimination—it matters little what. Few stop to think what that food does for them. This is the first turn on the road to dyspepsia. Reckless disregard of the proper choice of foods, rapid eating and improper mastication, are the unquestioned causes of all stomach disorders from the slight ache to the malignant cancer.

There is nothing more revolting than a dyspeptic stomach—a very vat for putrefaction, sending forth its poisons throughout the entire system, decreasing the brain, befouling the breath, souring the taste, deadening the muscles, incapacitating the liver and kidneys for their work, debilitating the heart, choking the lungs and clogging the bowels.

All of these disagreeable and dangerous conditions are due to the improper digestion of food and the consequent assimilation of poison. What else can be expected? If the food lies in the stomach if the system is constipated, fermentation is the natural result, and the poison is carried to your nerves, brain, heart and lungs and painful breathing.

There is only one way to relieve this condition. If the stomach refuses to digest your food put something into it that will. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are nothing but digestives. They are not a medicine. They work when the stomach will not.

Each tablet contains enough pepsin, diastase, golden seal and other digestive elements to reduce 3,000 grains of ordinary food to the proper consistency for assimilation into the blood.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are absolutely pure. There is nothing harmful in them. They stand on their endorsement by 40,000 physicians in the United States and Canada.

Ask any family physician his opinion of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and if he is honest toward you he will state positively that they will cure your stomach trouble whatever it may be, unless you have waited too long and have allowed your disorder to develop into cancer.

Act to-day and begin to end your suffering. A free trial package will be sent to your address upon request. The 50 cent size packages are for sale at your druggist's. F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

SCHENK POISONED, SAYS CHEMIST

Expert at Trial of Packer's Wife Declares He Found Arsenic and Lead in Drinking Water.

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 13.—Pale and agitated, Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, on trial charged with administering poison to her husband, Joan O. Schenk, a tinpacker, showed in court to-day that the strain of the trial has begun to tell on her. Although she smiled, her lips quivered. However, she defiantly swept the room with her eyes and still carried her law books and note book.

Mrs. Schenk's first signs of weakness followed a remorseless attack which Prosecuting Attorney Handlan is making upon her, building up without compassion what lawyers in the court room have termed an almost impregnable case. The possibility that Nurse Juliette Kline, the detective nurse, would make startling and sensational evidence brought out an army of men and women who fought about the Ohio County court house seeking admission.

Dentist on the Stand.

The first witness called by the prosecution to-day was Dr. O. W. Burdats, a dentist, who was called to testify that the black lines found on Schenk's gums and declared by Dr. F. L. Hupp to be the result of arsenic poisoning could not have resulted from defective teeth. Before Dr. Burdats took the stand it began to look as though the trial would be delayed through the non-appearance of the defendant. She finally bustled in, accompanied by her lawyers, and it was explained to the court that the lateness of their arrival was due to an important conference which had been held in Mrs. Schenk's cell.

While awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Schenk and her lawyers Prosecutor Handlan declared that he could produce thirty more witnesses, if necessary, to establish the guilt of the woman.

"It will not be necessary to call that number, however," said Mr. Handlan. "I intend to call Dr. J. W. Mallet of the University of Virginia, who made a chemical analysis of the water given to Mr. Schenk, and Nurse Kline, who nursed Mr. Schenk; Lonie Wilson, the Schenk chauffeur, and several others, and I believe now that this number will be sufficient."

The most startling statement expected from Miss Kline, according to the State, was that Mrs. Schenk offered her $1,000 to place a poison pill in Mr. Schenk's food after the hospital authorities denied her any privileges about her husband's bedside.

Dr. Burdats testified that he had done Schenk's dental work for twelve years.

"On October 18th and 20th he came into my office accompanied by a nurse," said the witness. "He complained of sore gums and I made an examination. From my diagnosis I concluded that he was suffering from some drug, for his teeth were all right."

"How did you arrive at the conclusion that a drug had been administered to Mr. Schenk?" asked Prosecutor Handlan.

"I lifted the gums and found the blood dark and sluggish," replied the witness. A wrangle between Attorney J. P. O'Brien of counsel for Mrs. Schenk and the prosecutor followed when the prosecuting attorney tried to show that Dr. Hupp had ordered Mr. Schenk to have a dentist examine his mouth. Attorney O'Brien, for the defence, cross-examined Dr. Burdats, trying to show that disease of the stomach would cause a blackening of the gums. The witness refused to admit this.

Two Poisons in Water.

Dr. Charles Galzer of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, who testified yesterday to finding arsenic in Schenk's drinking water and medicines, after a chemical analysis, followed Dr. Burdats on the stand. He testified that he advised Dr. Hupp on October 26 of his finding both arsenic and sugar of lead in the articles submitted to him.

Professor J. W. Mallet, an instructor in chemistry at the University of Virginia, was next called. In response to questions from Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Fred L. Henry, he established himself as an authority by naming the various American and European scientific societies of which he is a member.

"On or about October 26, Professor Dunnington of the University of Virginia received a packet from Wheeling to be analyzed and the work was delegated to me," said the witness.

"What were the results of your examination?"

"There were three. First, I found arsenic, but no lead. The second time I found a substance known as 'fowlers solution,' a mixture of potash, arsenic and lavender ipotasium arsenatate. The third test showed arsenic, lead and the solution mingled."

The bottle containing the analyzed water was passed among the jurors, who sniffed it while the examination of Professor Mallet continued. Dr. Hupp was recalled briefly to identify the exhibit, and then Herbert O. Baer, a druggist, who packed the samples for express shipment, was called and identified the bottles.

Florence Coleman, a colored domestic, who worked occasionally for the Schenk family, also took the stand.

Despite the mass of less technical nature of the testimony given by the scientific men, Mrs. Schenk kept her pencil busy, and when the examination of Florence Coleman was begun, she passed forward and whispered into the ears of Attorney O'Brien.

"Florence, did you ever put anything in Mr. Schenk's medicine or in the bottle of Ithia water for his use?" the girl was asked.

"No, sir, I never did," replied the girl, emphatically.

HEN LAYS EGG IN "COP'S" LAP

Somerville police headquarters is running a poultry show on the side, not so big as the one in Mechanics Building, but quite successful so far as eggs go. The poultry consists of the following, namely: Two hens.

They were found in the possession of Fred Monahan of No. 11 Winter street, Everett. He was charged with intoxication and with stealing the hens. In court to-day he pleaded guilty and was held in $100 for trial Monday.

Patrolman Arnold, who arrested Monahan and the hens, held one of the hens in his lap. En route to the station in the wagon, the hen squalked. "Cut-cut-ca-dah-cut." This is hen talk for "I've laid an egg."

Arnold took a look.

"Durned if she hasn't," said Arnold. There was the egg in his lap.

Monahan was put in one cell, the hens in an adjoining one. They are there now. The hens are preparing to lay some more eggs.

ALDRICH IS SERIOUSLY ILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Colleagues of Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island have been informed that he is seriously ill at his home here and the sore throat from which he was at first reported to be suffering has developed into a severe case of tonsilitis, it is said.

It is reported that the senator has been confined to his bed for more than a week, and that by order of his physicians, no person, not even his secretary, is permitted to disturb him. So much doubt surrounds the case that his friends in the Senate are much disturbed. Senator Aldrich has not been at the Capitol since the holidays, but none of his colleagues supposed his illness to be more than a slight cold, which had affected his throat.

These close to the Rhode Island Senator, however, have been aware that he has not been a well man since he was operated on in New York just before the holidays for a supposedly slight trouble affecting his arm. On the morning of the day he started for New York he was jolted by a street car in Providence, but nothing was thought of this accident at the time.

The Senator's age and the fact that he was not in robust health before the operation, are causing his friends much concern.

INSURGENT LEADERS FOR CITY CLUB TALKS

Secretary Winship of the Boston City Club has returned from Washington with promises from Senators La Follette, Cummins and Nelson and from Speaker designate Champ Clark, Congressman Underwood, the new majority leader, and Congressman Cooper, another radical insurgent, to speak before the City Club this Winter and Spring.

EDISON FORECASTS MARVELS OF FUTURE

Thomas A. Edison says:

"There will be no poverty in the world one hundred years from now.

"The discovery of how to make gold may be made to-morrow. It is only a question of the proper combination and treatment of matter. All matter is alike.

"The human brain is a machine—a machine made of meat.

"The present type of aeroplane will soon be superseded by one patterned after the bumblebee, which flies because it makes sound waves which sustain it.

"The next generation in New England will first look at school of steam engines. Water wheels will soon make all the electricity to run all the railroads.

"A nickel book, the leaves of which are of nickel one-twenty-thousandth of an inch thick, is cheaper, tougher, more flexible than ordinary book paper. Such a book two inches thick would contain 40,000 pages, will weigh a pound, and I can make a pound of such sheets for a dollar and a quarter.

"Furniture will soon be made of steel.

"All furniture will soon be made of steel.

"Within thirty years all building construction will be of reinforced concrete, from the finest mansions to the tallest skyscrapers."

A STRIKING FORECAST OF INVENTION.

One of the most backward of public men when it comes to giving expression to his opinions and beliefs, Thomas A. Edison speaks out about once a year. The forgoing are some of the striking statements by him expressed in an interview in the February Cosmopolitan.

"The discovery of how to manufacture gold may be made to-morrow," he said. "It is just as likely to be made to-morrow as at any other time. The discovery will surely be made some time, because the making of gold is a question only of the proper combination and treatment of matter. I mean by this that all matter is alike. Silver and gold differ only because the matter in them was combined in different proportions and treated in a different manner. Who knows but radium has the power to convert a cheap metal into a dear one? If not radium, something else."

Bumblebee Aeroplane.

Edison has a high regard for the common bee as a flier. He says its wings are exceedingly small in proportion to the size and weight of its body. It flies so well only because it uses its wings so well. Beats the air until the air becomes like metal stills. Moreover, the believes we shall have to learn wisdom from the numbskull before we shall travel in the air very far, very fast, or very safely. He would apply the bumblebee principle of lifting the flying machine, and the present engineer system of driving it ahead. In his opinion, flying machines should be able to go straight up.

Aeroplanes can go up only as they go ahead. "Suppose you had four million bumblebees," he said, "attached to wire wickerwork on which was seated a man. Can't you understand that if the bumblebees were signaled to fly, they would lift the man? I believe mechanical bumblebees could be so attached to a flying machine that they would lift it straight up. By 'mechanical bumblebees' I mean pulsating propellers revolving upon their axes at tremendous speed, once in the air, ordinary propellers would be used to drive the machine ahead."

Edison believes the present style of aeroplane will soon be discarded, and that "bumblebee fliers" will carry passengers at the rate of a hundred miles an hour, or more.

Yet the changes Edison foresees in the methods of transportation are less radical than the changes he foresees in the use to which steel is destined soon to fall from its high pinnacle as the skeleton of skyscrapers, to the material of which furniture is made. Book shelves may also be made of steel. Even the pages of books may be made of steel, though Edison regards nickel as a better substitute for paper. Here, indeed, is a case where the small end of a wedge is the big end. The imagination is not unexcused by the suggestion of books made without steel; but nickel books, bound in steel!

Books Made of Metal.

"Why not?" asked Edison. "Nickel will absorb printers' ink. A sheet of nickel one-twenty-thousandth of an inch thick is cheaper, tougher and more flexible than an ordinary sheet of book paper. Such a nickel book, two inches thick, would contain 40,000 pages, would weigh a pound, and only a pound. I can make a pound of nickel sheets for a dollar and a quarter, and furniture will soon be made of steel," said Edison. "The steel required for a given piece of furniture costs only one-fifth as much as the wood would cost for the same piece of furniture, less than one-fifth light, because only a little steel is required. And polished steel takes a beautiful finish. It can be stained in perfect imitation of mahogany, walnut, cherry, oak, or any other wood. The babies of the next generation will grow up used to such chairs and steel sofa tables. They will not know what wooden furniture is.

"Improved engineering, finally, Edison looks for a lively future. He believes ardently in industrial training. Cadets at West Point will threaten dynasties and thrones are due to change at any time, and that similar troubles will be due in this country in an generation.

"I believe," said he, "that all England will some day stop at the sound of one cannon, and that for the benefit of all of mankind."

Asked if the world that Edison sees coming. What a flashlight picture of the future! Man, at last, coming into his own. Coming into his own, because he knows how to use his own. Knows how to use his own because he knows what is his own. Knows what is his own because his own mind has told him. Because his brain, that has developed so slowly, has told him. Has told him that everything on earth, in the sky and beyond the sky was his own. That the thinking man is headed to his will, the entarnet harnessed to his need, and the forces that feed, fashioned into tongues that speak, and hands that make. Hands only as long were human hands. Hands that can weave a thread of silk or crush a ton of rock. Hands that can make in abundance what ever human beings need.

All Poverty to End.

In such a world, less ought there be poverty?

"There will be no poverty in the world a hundred years from now," said Edison. "There is no limit to the cheapness with which things can be made. The world will soon be flooded with the cheap products of machinery. See the result of the cheap products."

The world flooded with food, clothing, shelter, and luxuries. No half-starved children, no overworked mothers, no overworked fathers, no disease-breeding, cheerless tenements or houses. The world flooded with food, clothing, shelter, and luxuries.

Impossible? Read on:

"Why should we expect poverty to continue?" asked Edison. "Poverty was for a world that used only its hands. When men used nothing but their hands, poverty was almost intense. Now that men have begun to use their brains, poverty is decreasing. Poverty is decreasing though we have been using our brains only a little while. Just how long the world has stood, and then recall that practically everything we know today that is worth while we have learned within a hundred years. Look about you and see how many things that were worth while were known a hundred years ago. And we have only just begun to use our brains. What we know is not an atom of what there is to know. But we are learning how to control the forces of nature. As we learn, we shall transform the world. The most wonderful changes are coming—changes about which no one can today do more than dream."

Experiments in Government.

The world flooded with food, clothing, shelter and luxuries! What good would it do the people of the world if a few men should own all those things? Edison had thought of that. He realizes the size of the problem. But he says it is a problem for the solving of which neither he nor his kind can help. Inventors can make the world flooded—only the people can provide the governmental means for keeping the riches they make. He believes the people are going to provide those means. He believes there is going to be a real fear for the man who would take what another makes. He believes there will be cracks in the walls of governments and rips in constitutions; that the thinking man, the man who will some day, say to England, "Stand still!" will compel government to serve him, and destroy any government that will not serve him. Moreover, he believes things ought to be changed. Civilization, he says, is not on the right basis. A few are getting too much and the rest not enough.

BABY'S ECZEMA BEGAN IN PIMPLES

When Two Weeks Old. Would Water and Itch. Broken Out Most on Face. Used Box of Cuticura Ointment and Nearly Cake of Cuticura Soap. Was Completely Cured.

"My little girl had eczema on her face which first started to break out on her when she was two weeks old. It began in pimples, and would water and itch. It was on the back of her neck to the edge of her hair, and in between her shoulders. But it was broken out the most on her face.

"I doctored with two different doctors, and they did not seem to help her. Then a cousin of mine recommended the Cuticura Remedies. She said they cured one of her children, so I tried them, and they gave my child relief. I used a box of Cuticura Ointment and nearly a cake of Cuticura Soap, and my little girl was completely cured. She is three years old now and has not a sign of eczema. I have been keeping the Cuticura Ointment ever since and think the Cuticura Remedies are all right. I tell other people about them and how they cured my little girl." (Signed) Mrs. Minnie Clutten. Dear Lick, Pa., Aug. 29, 1910.

Cuticura Remedies afford the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children and adults. A cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and a box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient. Sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., Boston, for free 32-page book on the skin and scalp.

CATHOLIC HOME CARED FOR 1422

At the forty-seventh annual meeting of the directors of the Home for Destitute Catholic Children on Harrison avenue Superintendent Patrick Hayden reported that there were 206 boys and girls in the home a year ago and that since then 1,422 destitute and orphan were received into the home and cared for. 675 were placed in Catholic families and 122 were returned to their parents upon their reformation or conditions warranting it.

Treasurer John A. Breen reported that during the past year $33,500 were received from the Annual Charity Collection, from donations, subscriptions, bequests and through the Ladies' Aid Society of the home at the annual festival, and that $27,000 were expended for the maintenance of the home and the children.

But three of the whole number cared for died during the past year.

The directors voted that their grateful acknowledgement be extended to the charitable public for its generosity in the home and the children, to Thomas J. Scanlon, M. D., and Timothy Hurley, D. D. S., for their gratuitous services to the children during the year, and to the Ladies' Aid Society for its substantial assistance.

MME. SEVERANCE HONORED AT 91

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 13.—Mme. Caroline Severance, the "Mother of Women's Clubs," one of the first leaders in the woman's suffrage movement, whose name from the Atlantic coast to the Pacific is loved and revered, celebrated today her ninety-first birthday. Several thousand friends called during the day to pay their tribute to the "grand old lady."

Since the days in Boston, before the war, when she and her husband were part of a coterie of famous American men and women, Mme. Severance has always been a leader in women's advancement. Among those who assisted Mme. Severance was her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Pierre Severance of Boston and New Bedford, Mass.

CLERGYMAN WANTS "TO PUT THOSE WHO NEED HELP ON THE RIGHT TRACK"

Writes Letter in the Hope of Helping Sufferers From Colds to Cure Them as He Was Cured

The following letter from a Phillipsport, N. Y., clergyman is of special interest. Rev. John Ernest Parker, "in the hope of putting those who need help on the right track to get it," as he says, tells his experience: "For several winters I have used Father John's Medicine when suffering from a severe cold, and it has never failed to give the desired results. When living where 'Father John's' is not procurable, I have tried other so-called remedies, but relief did not come and we have sent quite a distance for this 'friend of humanity' which I am glad to testify has never failed when put to the test.

This letter is given without solicitation, but with the hope that it may be the means of putting someone who needs help on the right track to get it." (Signed) John Ernst Parker, pastor, M. E. church, Phillipsport, N. Y.

You will remember that neglected colds at this season of the year quickly lead to pneumonia and that you can fortify the system with Father John's Medicine, and from it gain strength to ward off disease. Free from dangerous stimulants.

ELOPER TO GET WARM WELCOME

Parents of Miss Jennie E. Basile of No. 118 Chelsea street, East Boston, who eloped and married Alfred Anelia, are preparing a warm welcome home for their daughter.

A group of young people of the parish of the Church of the Sacred Heart were assembled to rehearse their minstrel show in the hall of the Sacred Heart School in Paris street, East Boston, when, to their dismay, Miss Basile, their pianist, who is drilling them for their performances of February 22, failed to appear. She has two younger sisters, Josephine and May, and they were unable to explain their sister's absence from the rehearsal.

Had Started For Work.

Miss Margaret O'Rourke, a chum of the missing girl, was sent to the Basile home and there she found James F. Winton of No. 107 Bennington street and Miss May Timmins, breaking the news of the elopement and marriage of Miss Basile and Alfred Anelia.

Miss Basile had not been seen since she left her home by the morning to go to her work in one of the department stores in Boston.

The young couple had been acquainted four months. Her friends had been anticipating the announcement of the marriage of Miss Basile to a young American bank clerk.

Alfred Anelia is twenty-seven years old, is well known, popular and highly respected among the Italians of Boston, although he is only slightly known to the younger set in East Boston and to the members of the Sacred Heart parish. He is employed in the Immigration Department of the Cunard Steamship Company and is also a student of Tufts College Medical School.

Honeymoon in New York.

Miss Basile and Mr. Anelia met yesterday afternoon, and soon they were joined by Miss May Timmins and Miss Florence Keene, two chums, who live in East Boston, and they immediately called at the parochial residence of a clergyman known to both.

Alfred Lacentra was best man. The company went to the South Station, where the bride and bridegroom boarded a train for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Basile became reconciled to their daughter's elopement after a time, and they joined with the young folks in the jollification and promised a reception for the bride and bridegroom when they return. The only regret of Miss Basile's parents was that she had not permitted them to give her a real chantenfide Italian wedding.

FOUR-DAY-OLD BOY GETS SIGNAL HONOR

The little son of L. Fred Sanborn of the Fellsway Driving Club, whom the stork left at the Sanborn home in Medford only four days ago, has been elected an honorary member of the driving club.

Soon the little youngster will be elected to membership in the Fellsway Club, if he should decide to turn Highball (2.03¾), around this year at Combination Park, if he would require a very good kind of stiff hunt to find his match.

TREATMENT FOR SICK HEADACHE

A New Method of Cure That Will Interest Every Sufferer.

Made Possible by a Special Laxative Designed to Be Used with the Tonic Treatment.

Mrs. Annie M. Lewis, of R. F. D. No. 10, Gardiner, Me., suffered for a number of years from sick headaches. She says:

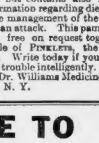
"I suffered from persistent sick headaches for a great many years. Besides taking headache powders, I was treated by doctors, but was able to get only slight relief for the headaches always returned. They were so severe that I would often have to go to bed for a day or so. It was impossible for me to go far from home for I would soon feel the sickness coming on. I suffered with nausea and vomiting spells. I was very weak and continued to lose in strength. Finally I could count on being able to do only about a week's work in every four. My blood was in poor condition. I had no ambition to do anything and felt languid all of the time.

"It was not until I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I found relief. I took a few boxes and noticed a wonderful change for the better. I became stronger and healthier than in years. The headaches have disappeared and I am able to do my work. I feel that my cure is sufficient reason why I should recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all sufferers from sick headaches."

As a rule a sufferer from sick headache can tell hours, sometimes days, in advance, when the headache is coming on. This fact makes it possible to use a laxative, as soon as the approach of an attack is discovered, to eliminate the poison from the system and prevent the attack or in a great measure moderate its severity. A new laxative, Pinklets, designed to be used in connection with Dr. William' Pink Pills, affords a perfect combination treatment.

We have prepared a pamphlet that not only describes fully the laxative-tonic treatment of sick headache and gives specific directions for the use of the remedies but contains also much valuable information regarding dies, exercise and the management of the sick-room during an attack. This pamphlet will be sent free on request together with a sample of Pinklets, the little laxative pills. Write today if you want to treat your trouble intelligently. Address: The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

FREE TO THE DEAF



All Persons Suffering from Deafness Or Catarrh Will Be Treated Absolutely Free Until Cured if they before Feb. 14, 1911, write to the Peabody Institute, Peabody building, Norfolk, Va., stating that they are suffering either from deafness or catarrh. They will receive free, consultation, and free office treatment and medicine if necessary, until cured. If they call at the institute, 31 Temple place, Boston, Mass., no matter how long you have been deaf or how bad your catarrh may be, you will be treated absolutely free until cured.

HE WAS TOTALLY DEAF

Mr. Charles F. Snell, 181 Lester St., Providence, R. I., says: "My hearing had been failing for about three years, and finally I consulted the best specialist in Providence, and he treated me for catarrh of the head. I also went at the Phono-Pneumo office I was in a desperate condition, was totally deaf and could hear a physical speak. I could not hear a word the doctor said, everything I had to do he written. But thank God and the Phono-Pneumo treatment, I am now cured. It was a difficulty in understanding all conversation, as my deafness and catarrh has improved. All who take this treatment open my advice have been surprised at the results."

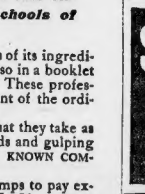
The Modesty of Women



Naturally makes them shrink from the indelicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures.

"Favorite Prescription" is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice.

Some of the numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of KNOWN COMPOSITION. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 31 one-cent stamps for cloth-bound copy.

If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge, by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

MAYOR SEEKS COUNCIL OF 12

Twelve councilmen for the Boston City Council is the plan of Mayor Fitzgerald in a petition he has just made to the Legislature. The bill provides that nominations for Councilmen shall be made at primaries, the two candidates receiving the highest number of votes in each district, except district seven, to be placed upon the ballot as candidates at the municipal election, when one is to be chosen as councilman. In district seven, the four receiving the highest number of votes at the primary are to be placed upon the ballot as candidates and two are to be elected.

UPTON SINCLAIR CURES DISEASE BY FASTING

Curing disease by fasting is a task undertaken by Upton Sinclair which he followed in a remarkable article in the February number of the Cosmopolitan magazine, just issued. Some months ago Mr. Sinclair published an article in the same magazine on "Starving for Health's Sake," but he did not anticipate the inquiries he would receive regarding his system of fasting, and, as a rebuke to his critics, he gives the names of a number of the persons benefited.

Ninety-two Report Benefit.

In the article on "Starving for Health's Sake," Mr. Sinclair published the request that those who tried the fast as a result of the article let him know the outcome. At the time of writing his last article the author says 109 replies have been received. He then continues:

"The total number of fasts taken was 277 and the average number of days was 10. There were ninety of five days or over, fifty-one of ten days or over, and six of thirty days or over. Out of the 109 persons who wrote to me, ninety-two reported benefit and seventeen no benefit. Of the seventeen about half give wrong breaking of the fast as the reason for the failure. In cases where the cure had not proved permanent, about half expressed that the recurrence of the trouble was caused by wrong eating, and about half by relapse. Also it is to be noted that in the cases of the seventeen who got no benefit, almost all were fasts of only three or four days.

"Following is the complete list of diseases benefited, forty-five of the cases having been diagnosed by physicians: 1, indigestion (usually associated with nervousness, 27; rheumatism, 5; colds, 9; tuberculosis, 4; constipation, 14; poor circulation, 3; headaches, 6; anemia, 3; eczema, 1; bronchial trouble, 6; syphilis, 1; liver trouble, 5; general debility, 3; chills and fever, 1; blood poisoning, 1; neurasthenia, 9; locomotor ataxia, 1; sciatica, 1; asthma, 2; excess of uric acid, 1; epilepsy, 1; pleurisy, 1; impaction of bowels, 1; eczema, 2; catarrh, 6; appendicitis, 3; valvular disease of heart, 1; insomnia, 1; gas poisoning, 1; grippe, 1; cancer, 1; ulcerated leg, 1."

Then follows a brief summary of several of the most interesting cases, and Mr. Sinclair gives the names and addresses in each instance. A woman in California told of being cured of appendicitis and peritonitis; another man told of being cured of extreme nervousness and neuralgia, and most remarkable of all was a woman in Ohio of how she had been cured of cancer of the stomach.

Great Care Needed.

Great care should be taken in not overloading the stomach when the fast is broken, says the author. Hunger often comes back with a rush, but to yield to the cravings the whole system may become filled with toxins and undo the good accomplished by the fast.

Then follows an amusing passage describing the people undertaking the fast cure in a sanitarium. "One can see a sicker-looking collection of humans in such a place than anywhere else in the world, I fancy," says Mr. Sinclair. He tells how the patients look and of how they discuss their "symptoms" and boast of the number of days they have been fasting.

In answering his critics, many of whom said that fasting was likely to result in death from starvation, Mr. Sinclair cites the fact that doctors lose some of their cases simply because they cannot be cured, and then he continues:

"As to the possibility that you might starve during those first days, while you are hungry, the answer is simply that you don't. It is perfectly true that men have died of starvation in three or four days; but the starvation existed in their minds — it was fright that killed them. That they did not truly starve is proved by my letters from people who have fasted over that time and who are alive to tell it.

"There are conditions in the human body which lead to death inevitably; and some of these conditions are beyond the power of the first to remedy. When a person so afflicted sets out to fast, and dies in spite of the fast, the papers of course declare that he died because of the fast. Dr. L. H. Hazard of Seattle has published a very useful little book, 'Fasting for the Cure of Disease,' in which she tells of two cases of 'death from fasting,' where the autopsy revealed conditions with which the fast had no connection, and which made death certain. Chances of that sort one has to take in life; you may have a blood vessel in such a state that when you run after a street car the increased pressure will cause it to burst; but you do not on that account declare that no man ought to exert himself violently."

The great thing about fasting is that it sets you a new standard of health, Mr. Sinclair says. You have found a way to keep that virginal state of the stomach which one possesses for a month or two after a successful fast. And he writes:

"It must mean, of course, many changes in your life. If you really wish to keep it, it means the giving up of tobacco and alcohol, and a too-sedentary life, and steam-heated rooms; above all else, it means that you must give up self-indulgent eating.

CZARINA AGAIN CRITICALLY ILL

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 13.—The Czarina is again critically ill. All court fetes have been postponed. Partial paralysis has attacked her feet and is extending to her legs and arms. Her illness follows the improvement noticeable after she took the cure at Bad Nauheim. The doctors cannot give any reason for her condition, except nervous strain, nor can they suggest any treatment.

The Czar, overcome with grief, is in constant attendance on the Czarina, doing everything in his power to rouse her from the state of depression into which she has since permanently fallen. She shows interest in nothing except the Czarewitch, fears for whose safety haunt her day and night. The boy has to be taken to her room every hour during the day so that she may satisfy herself he is still living.

The court is again plunged into gloom, while the life of the imperial family is dull and sorrowful in the extreme.

70 STARVING ON TRAIN IN SNOW

SPOKANE, Jan. 13.—Starving and freezing fifty passengers and a crew of twenty from Chicago and other Eastern points are held prisoners in a Great Northern train that is hemmed in by giant snow drifts in one of the highest passes of the Rocky Mountains in Montana.

Imprisoned with the passengers, but unable to do much to relieve their plight, are nearly twenty train hands and railway postal clerks, the latter being on a mail train which is stalled a short distance from the "Oregonian Limited" as the passenger train is known on the train schedule.

Four huge snow plows have been sent to the aid of the stalled trains, two from each of the stations named, Fielding, Mont., to the east and west. The trains are near Fielding. None of the rotaries was able to make any impression on the huge drifts. One westbound rotary succeeded in getting about thirty miles from Havre, Mont., on its relief mission. It could go no farther and when an attempt was made to return it was found that the track also was blocked.

The two trains have been held in the drifts since Monday and the last word was received on Tuesday when one of the crew of the limited succeeded in reaching a telegraph box and establishing a connection with Havre.

He reported that the food supply was exhausted. The mail train has not been heard from since Monday and the men on board are believed to be in a desperate plight than the prisoners on the passenger train.

SOCIETY PET DOGS IN BRIGADE AID POORER KIN BY UNIQUE PLAN

A novel plan for raising funds for the better medical care and surgical treatment of bread winners and pets of the poor—horses, dogs and cats—is about to be put in operation by the New York Women's League of Animals. This is the formation of a dog parade, to be made up of the pets of the well-to-do, which are to act as collecting agents for the league and practical aids to the poorer kin. Each dog which joins the brigade will pay $1. This subscription entitles the dog to a special medal, authorizing him to collect funds for the Animals' Hospital.

GIRL'S MOTHER HALTS WEDDING

HUDSON, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Mary Grenda of Houghton street has been successful in her effort to frustrate the plan of her daughter Mary, aged fifteen, to wed John Chares, twenty-one.

Town Clerk Fred C. Welch issued a marriage license when the girl's father, William Grenda, died in writing his consent and the ceremony was to have taken place Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Grenda put her foot down, and there will be no wedding bells for Mary.

Chares says that Mary's mother first promised him $500 with which to buy his wedding outfit, then she reduced it to $300, and finally she paid but $200. He and Mary went to Boston and spent most of the money on gowns and rings. Now Mrs. Grenda says Mary ought to wait two years.

Chares says: "I wanted to marry Mary. I was honorable and wanted a wife. I would have married her even if Mrs. Grenda had not given me the $200. She promised me more, but because she didn't give it to me didn't make any difference. She has made me very unhappy."

Mary, too, replied that she won't be able to wed Chares. "I loved him," she said, "and I wanted to marry him. He was so good to me. I thought he loved me and might marry him. In fact, I gave him the money. I had earned it myself, but was under the impression that he would buy me an outfit. And I don't like the stories my mother is telling about how I got the money. I didn't steal it from her. I am not that kind of a girl."

Business Success Through Publicity

No. 19

IMAGINATION IN BUSINESS

It is the idea back of the sales plan that has much to do with the success of the sales. An attractive window or counter display will always increase sales.

Consider the hat business. In New York city a little retail store made an unusual window display of Derbys. It dressed its window with autumn foliage and hung the hats on the branches of a small tree. Hundreds stopped and almost as many made purchases. Other effective window displays followed. The business jumped. Other stores were established and to-day that hatter is running a chain of stores in different parts of New York.

So it is with advertising. Present your goods through the medium of an attractively written and well-displayed advertisement in the columns of a paper of large circulation and it's just like a good window display. You will attract the attention of the reader when he or she is at leisure and secure a hearing for your goods that you could not otherwise obtain, and like a good window display, this kind of advertising will bring people into your store.

There is no better medium in Boston than the Boston Evening American, with its circulation of almost 400,000. Consider the force of this kind of salesmanship. It is nothing more or less than sending a little salesman introduced by a friend into the thousands of homes in Greater Boston.

Write the Boston American, Trade Aid Department, for further particulars.

Bigger and Better Mark Downs Than Ever

This is accounted for by the fact that the smaller the lots become the deeper we cut the prices, in order to make a clean job of their clearance. Then, too, some low-priced lots sell completely out, and certain other higher-priced goods of same order are marked down to take their place. This keeps something fresh in way of bargains on the go all the time.

Come any day and you'll find bargains, because we're going to keep right on chopping off generous slices from the prices, so as to make sure of clean stock sheets before stock taking February 1st.

$1,000,000 WILL FIGHT DELAYED

The hearing in the Suffolk Probate Court of the contest to break the million dollar will of Benjamin W. Parker, the wealthy molasses broker, who died last month in Winthrop, has been postponed to May 15, because of the illness of Gilbert H. Ordway, counsel for Professor Frederick P. Gay, of Leland Stanford University, plaintiff. The dead man was Gray's uncle.

Professor Gay alleges that Chas. Parker of Pasadena, Cal., younger brother of the testator and the residuary legatee, is willed the entire estate as the result of undue influence exercised upon the aged molasses broker, and also that the testator was of unsound mind and in no condition to draw a will.

34 DAYS ON SEA TRIP FROM MAINE

LYNN, Jan. 12.—Thirty-four days on the way between Calais, Me., and Lynn the two-masted schooner Moonlight was towed into the harbor here by the tug H. A. Mathis of Boston, which had found the distressed schooner off Boston Light. The trip is ordinarily made in six days at the most. Captain Andrew Martin declared that he had passed through the most hair rowing experiences in the thirty years of his seafaring career.

$2,500 ROOSTER SHOW FEATURE

A handsome single comb, buff Orpington rooster, valued at $2,500, and said to be the highest priced bird of its kind in existence, is a big feature of the Poultry Show at Mechanics Building.

The bird is owned by Joseph Pye of South Norwalk, Ct. During the past few days he has refused offers of $1,500 and $2,000 for the rooster, and says that $10,000 could not purchase it.

In every show that this bird has entered, he has carried away the blue ribbon for shape and color. Its feathers are buff through to the skin. Eggs from his matings are valued at $5 per egg.

FITZGERALD LAUDS COLLECTOR LOEB

Customs Collector Loeb of New York was lauded by Mayor Fitzgerald at the annual banquet of the Boston Jewelers' Club. "The amount spent yearly by travelers abroad," he said, "comes to from $500,000 to $1,000,000. The people who make money at home should spend it at home. I therefore hope you will commend the public spirit and the nerve of Mr. Loeb in forcing the richest malefactors to pay for the foreign-bought goods they bring into this country."

BIG JUMP IN HUB'S EXPORTS

Exports from Boston during 1910 were valued at $75,778,802, an increase of $2,941,963 over 1909, a gratifying gain, considering the fact that for many ears past Boston has been showing an almost unvaried decline in value of its annual exports.

The increase of nearly $3,000,000 over 1909 compares with a 1909 decrease of $11,416,097, and a decline in 1908 of $20,257,372. If the 1910 ratio of increase over 1909 can be continued for 1911, Boston has a chance to wrest from Philadelphia the distinction of being the second largest export city on the Atlantic coast. In 1909 Boston held sixth place, being exceeded by the following cities in the order named: New York, Galveston, New Orleans, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Exports in 1910, compared with the 1909 high record of $106,072,098 shows a decrease of $30,293,830.

Imports during 1910 valued at $129,667,270 were the largest in the history of Boston, and exceeded the previous record figure of $127,025,654 in 1909 by $2,642,722. On several occasions, during the year just closed imports in a single month were more than twice the amount of exports. During March, for instance, exports aggregated $8,495,791, while imports were $15,504,439. The figures for the last quarter of 1910, however, showed a balance of trade more in favor of Boston, imports for October, for instance, being valued at $7,500,722, comparing with exports of $6,390,656.

AMES RAPS LODGE AS "BOSS" OF THE MASS. LEGISLATURE

Were I elected a Senator of the United States, I would feel it a violation of my position to use—as Senator Lodge has done—the power and influence to control the State Legislature or influence it in any way on questions concerning State affairs, and I have in mind the recent interference in the proposed election of United States Senators by the people and of the adoption of the income tax.—Congressman Butler Ames, Republican.

WASHINGTON ALICES NOW ALYSES, PLEASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Washington society has taken up phonetic spelling in a rather a unique way. It all began with Miss Alys Meyer, daughter of the Secretary of the Navy, who, on her return from Europe, came back as Alys, although when she left Washington last Summer she was just the old fashioned Alice. Each one of the local newspapers was called up and given instructions that whenever the name of the eldest daughter of the secretary was used it must be spelled Alys. The Meyer girls have always been leaders among the younger set, and now all the Alices in society are Alyses, if that be the proper plural.

BIG YEAR'S WORK BY THE Y. M. C. A.

During the past year the Young Men's Christian Association secured employment for 942 men and boys, representing an annual wage of $365,000, according to a report just made for the work in 1910, the year which will be memorable because of the fire which destroyed the large home of the Y. M. C. A. on Boylston street.

In the several departments of the association there were connected with the organization 8,729 different men and boys. The last day of the year found the membership totalling 6,194. The number of persons referred to lodging houses was 1,097. Temporary beds were provided for 39,062 men. At the railroad branches 50,902 meals were served. Immigrants served in some practical way at the docks numbered 1,625. Thirteen nationalities were reached through the English classes.

Plans for the new building on Huntington avenue are being rapidly perfected and it is expected that building operations will begin soon. The plans contemplate six distinct buildings, but accessible through the main lobby of the administration building.

SYMPHONY WINS GREAT PRAISE

By CHARLES HENRY MELTZER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Rarely if ever has the Boston Symphony Orchestra been in more magnificent form than last night when it gave the first of its third pair of concerts at Carnegie Hall. A program of much dignity and charm had been compiled by Mr. Fiedler for the occasion. It contained nothing at all sensational unless a selection from "A Moorish Rhapsody" of Humperdinc deserved to have that adjective tacked on to it.

There was something distinctly humorous in the idea of so placid and discreet a composer as the creator of "Koenigkinder" being attempted, so to speak, from fairyland into the mysterious Orient. The conception opened with an admirable rendering of the andante from the "unfinished" Schubert symphony.

The place of honor in the scheme had been reserved for Beethoven's seventh symphony, one of the greatest works of music, as beautiful in its own way as anything conceived by mortal man. The reading of this work by Mr. Fiedler and his followers had breadth and charm. Every shading, every delicacy was reproduced without one single moment's loss of power.

A specific attraction of the concert was the appearance for the first time since last season of Mischa Elman. The work which he interpreted was the familiar "Spanish Symphony" of Lalo. He played it with assurance, taste and skill.

BERNHARDT IN ROLE OF TOSCA

"Tosca," the gory old melodrama of Sardou, which appealed to Puccini, the composer, so much that he made an opera of it, was given by Sarah Bernhardt and her company at the Boston Theatre last night.

"Tosca" is a drama of passion. It is full of action. It gets up steam in the second act and never pauses to take coal or water until all its leading characters lay strewn around on the stage, slaughtered in one way or another.

For a woman as old as Mme. Bernhardt to essay the title role of this lurious play is a proof positive of her sterling physical qualities, since she is externally agitated, as well as internally.

In the excitement the beautiful voice of the actress lost all its golden quality and became an "upplesnant contralto scream." Yet, in spite of everything, who could thrill you as Tosca to-day like Bernhardt? Her sufferings during the torture scene were reflected in the audiences, and the frenzy which resulted in the murder of Scarpia was harrowing in the extreme.

In Maxudian Bernhardt has a superb Scarpia. He was a cruel, crafty, despicable villain, in spite of his clean cut methods. The operatic baritones who think they play Scarpia should certainly see this impersonation.

The scenic dress of Tosca looked poor after the elaborate mountings at the opera, but they were built for a much smaller stage than the Boston Theatre.

VANDERBILT IN N. Y. C. OFFICES

Another member of the Vanderbilt family has been added to the working staff of the New York Central railroad. By this addition, the Vanderbilts become the most conspicuously identified with the New York Central than they have been in years. The last member of the family to be on the work is Harold Sterling Vanderbilt, well known in Boston where he has appeared often as the devoted escort of Miss Elizabeth Sears.

Harold Vanderbilt assumes the duties of his new position. He is in the office of General Solicitor Clowe Brown. This is the same office where Chauncey M. Depew, Jr., is employed.

Has Brilliant Record.

While Harold Vanderbilt is not well known as the Vanderbilts go, since the days of his youth, he has had a brilliant record. He went to St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass., and there won the Lowell Medal awarded to the best student.

At Harvard he was equally brilliant. He did four years' work in three. He was manager of the varsity football team during his Junior year. At Cambridge, during the college season, he was also a leader in the social life of the university. He is a good tennis player and expert motorist, possessing, being the owner of the racing runabout Vagrant, which won the Motor Boat Club of the New York Yacht Club.

Youngest of Family.

For years young Vanderbilt was known as Miss Vivian Vanderbilt's younger brother. But of late he has been seen much with Eleanore Sears and it is said he has been linked with her name in a possible marriage was taken of Harold Sterling Vanderbilt is the youngest member of the William K. Vanderbilt branch of the family. His mother and sister are divorced and since their separation Miss Vivian has lived with her mother. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt. He is the youngest brother of Willie K. Vanderbilt, and of Cornelius, Jr., and Miss Consuelo.

VANDERBILT GETS A GOOD HACKNEY

As a result of a flying visit to Boston, Alfred G. Vanderbilt has acquired a magnificent, high action, three-year-old harness stallion from Joseph Peel of Yarmouth, N. S. The terms are private, but Vanderbilt paid a long price for the harness.

The stallion was located by Clarence H. Wilson, Vanderbilt's racing valet, who is in Boston to marry Miss Jane Fleischmann of East Boston, whose mind is apparently not as much engaged with matrimony but that he can still discover the best horses that are in the market.

Joseph Peel, the late owner from whom Vanderbilt made the purchase, was an old time Back Bay coachman, and was also an expert on both the riding and driving horse. A few years ago Peel married a wealthy young woman in the Provinces and bought a stock farm near Yarmouth, N. S., where he has been very successful in raising high-class horses.

GREEN AND BLUE IN ICE BATTLE

Yale and Dartmouth battle to-morrow night at the Boston Arena. It will be the first appearance of the Eli seven in this city. As it is one of the intercollegiate championship contests a hard battle is expected.

Yale experts to score a victory over the Hanover lads, and will play its hardest to win, as a defeat will lead and blow to the Blues' rising outlook over Columbia, the dark horse of the Intercollegiate Hockey League, has already put one over the Yale seven at the Iceflitz, mated in New York

Dartmouth has a big advantage of a lot of practice on the rink during the intermission, besides doing plenty of everything on its own skating surface.

By the way the teams have shaped up in the preliminary part of the season they appear about as evenly matched as two combinations could be. That Yale and Dartmouth have many admirers is attested by the many requests for tickets for the event.

Young Man or Old Man?

By DOROTHY DIX

AMONG the problems of matrimony that young women debate is whether it is better to marry an old man or a young man—whether it is better, as the old saying is, to marry a man's dividing.

The one side argues that old men are more fatuous, the other that they are more generous; the one that they are more tractable, the other that they are more domineering; the one that they are more affectionate, the other that they are more self-centered; the one that they are more easily ruled by her head or her heart.

Of course, the term "old man," matrimonially speaking, is used in a relative sense. It doesn't mean really aged men, but middle aged or comparatively few years of seniority to the man she marries. A girl of twenty rarely marries a man of sixty. She usually marries a man of forty-five or fifty.

The bridge between youth and age can never be crossed.

Which would you rather do, mother? Help a man make his fortune, help him [illegible] Then [illegible] Or would you rather [illegible] Which would you rather do, mother? Help a man make his fortune, help him [illegible] Then [illegible] Or would you rather [illegible]

Desperate Desmond

NOW TO WRECK THE PROPELLER AND STEAL THE FAIR ROSAMOND
CURSES! THE AIR CURRENT HAS VERSED THE AIR CURRENT I'M FOILED!
NOW TO CLIMB INTO THE AIR AND RUN MY MACHINE
THE AIR SHIP WILL RESCUE US FROM THIS GALOOT! DESMOND IS FOILED!
I KNEW BEN HUR WOULD HEAR THE SIGNAL HA HA HA
HORROR! WE NEED GASOLINE

For a while things looked pretty dark for Claude and Rosamond. The desert bandoleros were right at their heels, gaining rapidly. But just then the aeroplane appeared on the scene, and the wind from its rapidly revolving propeller drove the sand back into Desmond's eyes, leaving our hero and heroine free to pursue the even tenor of their way.

The whirl of the mighty propeller causes the sand cloud to take the form of a tremendous drinking cup. Through the hole in the centre Desmond is able to get a good look on the airship with the trusty rifle he borrowed from Hadji Ben Hassan. He may not know that Desmond has borrowed the gun, but he has, and he hopes to put the aeroplane out of business.

But the man who is running this aeroplane knows a thing or two himself. Quickly turning his machine so that it points straight up in the air, he makes the sand revolve in a horizontal plane, and Desmond, who is not prepared for this manoeuvre, gets sand in his eyes and is unable to see where he is shooting.

Here you see the villain, or, rather, you don't see him, all covered up with sand. All he can do is to gnash his teeth in impotent rage, and that doesn't get him anything. It never pays to lose one's temper or to curse and fret over one's misfortunes. It's a wicked waste of time. Nevertheless, we all do it occasionally.

Now that Desmond is disposed of good and proper, the bird man is at his leisure to go to the rescue of Claude and Rosamon. Ah, how happy those two will be, up above the world so high, like two eagles in their lofty, white their old-time enemy is down on the desert, inhaling sand instead of cigarette smoke. Perhaps the change will do him good.

But we haven't seen Desmond's finish yet. He still has that trump card, and though he can't do any damage with it, he can at least attract the attention of the Sheik, who fumes distinguishes something with two high-bred Arabian steeds. You may think horses are no good for chasing aeroplanes, but wait until you see to-morrow's pictures.

The Manicure Lady

SHE HAS A DREAM

"THERE'S been a awful lot of grippe in town lately," said the Manicure Lady. "Everybody is all aches all over. I see people walking lame in the subway and groaning when they climb the stairs, and all along the streets of our great city I notice their men and brave women walking as if they was walking straight to the guillotine. Everybody is frowning and rubbing old Ned, and every body has a grouch. Brother Wilfred is working on a new ballad called 'You Think Your Heart Is Aching; It's Nothing but the Grippe.' I never seen anything like it in all my born days.

"The family doctor was in the other day to treat mother for one of her nervous spells, and he said that he hadn't been to sleep three straight hours in a row for at least two weeks. He says it's fierce. He says the only healthy people is the grocers and butchers, and he says they can't sleep either, after looking over their bills."

"It ain't the healthiest weather in the world, at that," said the Head Barber. "The wife hasn't been feeling well since that last spell of rainy weather, and the kid has the whooping cough. This is a rotten climate, when you come right down to it. Three of my regular customers fell me crouchy with the colds they have that they forgot to tip me when they got out of the chair this morning. Naturally, that had a tendency to make me feel a little under the weather myself, so I guess most everybody is sick."

"Father is the worst old rantan you ever seen," went on the Manicure Lady. "Most people feels a little out of sorts when they are laid up with a cold, but father acts as though it was the smallpox that was racking his poor old bones. He has the whole back waiting on him, except Wilfred, who swears that he will never lift his hand again to help father until the old gent takes back the words he said last Wednesday night, when he called Wilfred a poke ray right in front of eight or ten friends and neighbors. But the rest of us is doing the best we can to wait on the old geezer."

"I was never very sick but once," said the Head Barber, reflectively. "It was out in Tucson, Arizona. I was working on a ranch, and the little Mexican pony I always rode got a case of the spavins. We was that thick, that pony and I, that we used to be rubbing elbows all the time, and the first thing I knew I was spavined, too. It was an awful blow at first, but I tried to bear up under the strain, and in the course of time I found that the ailment had worn off."

"You never happened to have a glanders, did you, George?" asked the Manicure Lady. "Say, I wonder if you think you are kidding anybody? It's awful funny that when a lady starts in talking serious —and I am serious most of the time— that she can't get any kind of attention from a common loafer of a barber.

"Oh, well, some of these days I will be out of the Joe business, very likely married to a millionaire, and then I will drive up to some day in my six cylinder car and send my chauffeur down to get a shave once over in a hurry. All the time you will be working on him, I will be grinning down at you, sort of sarcastic like, and then when you will realize, too late, that you made a mistake when you tried to get gay with Maisie the Manicurist.

"Remember, George, that's the way things is going to break. I ain't going to talk no more to you. You make me tired." over to detach it.

Tricks of the Shopper

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

IT was a fancy dress ball. And I was talking to a charmingly pretty woman as a "Spanish dancer." In her hair was an exquisite dark red rose, which looked so natural that I was surprised, when she moved nearer, to find it made of velvet. And then as she turned I saw it dip price ring stitched.

"Oh, you've forgotten to take the tag off your flowers." Hold still a moment," and I reached over to unfasten it.

But she drew back quickly. "Oh, no—I'm afraid you'll disarrange my hair. Don't try to take it off—just tuck it under."

So I tucked it under the leaves, and as I did so I could not but see the mark—$3.98.

"I thought it was real. It's so very natural," I said.

"Yes, isn't it? I had such a time finding just that shade, but I think it goes particularly well with this costume.

When I saw her later in the evening she had danced the red rose almost out of her hair, and again the flimsy price tag was visible.

"Oh, do let me take that tag off—I'll show again." And once more I leaned

But again she drew back sharply. "Oh, no—tuck it under—but don't take it off."

"It will only slip out again."

"No, it won't, if you fasten it under right," bending over that I might reach it.

"But I can take it off without disarranging your hair," I persisted, innocently.

"But I don't want it taken off," almost crossly. "I'm going to return it to-morrow."

"Return it?"

"Yes, why not?"

"Why, you can't—you've worn it."

To-day's Best Story

"I ONCE," said the Colonel solemnly, "I once, and only once, had all thirteen troops dealt me."

"Er, I suppose you were the dealer?" suggested a candid friend.

"No, sir!" roared the Colonel; "no, sir, I was not the dealer!"

The friend, I ask was happened to the trump which the dealer turned up?"

And a terrible silence ensued.

"Oh, they won't know that. It'll not be hurt much."

"But I never heard of such a thing."

"Why, it's often done. When one has to have something for a fancy dress ball that they know will be needed again—they simply buy it, wear it, and take it back the next day."

I gasped. This was an entirely new phase of the art of shopping. And she spoke as though it was a perfectly legitimate one. Was wealthy lazy dreamed of cheating her washerwoman or her maid or any one she knew personally. But a department store—well, that was different somehow. She must not think I disapproved, I hastily assured her. Why shouldn't she return it?

That the sale and delivery of that flower had meant to the store the usual outlay of expenditure in the form of their employes' time had never occurred to her.

And now the return of the flower, the fitting and trouble of making out the refund check, would mean to that store a further loss. But that didn't occur to her. She was returning the flower in good condition and with the price tag still attached! That seemed quite all that was necessary.

Besides, she added, there's occasionally "Is it hard," he said, "but I want to be a Model."

The Model Widower

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

THERE lived, once upon a time, a man who so often had heard women abuse widowers he made up his mind if ever the Lord gave him opportunity he would prove himself a satisfactory one. He wouldn't begin to look around, as other widowers did, as soon as his wife was buried; he would conduct himself, he resolved, in such a way that he would be a Model.

Some years later the Lord gave him opportunity, and when he returned from his wife's funeral and looked at the four little children left on his hands, it was with a sense of helplessness that made him long to cry aloud for a woman, any woman or, so it was a woman, to come in and help him.

But he remembered that widowers are always accused of flitting with unseemly haste from one bereavement to another, up his burden alone, and contrived, with tact and of his oldest child, to do the housekeeping.

"It is hard," he said, "but I want to be a Model."

After a day's work downtown he baked, washed, ironed, scrubbed and sewed at home.

"I need a woman's help," he would admit to himself, but it was always under his breath. To have admitted it out loud might signify to the judgment of the women who make public opinion that he was beginning to take notice; that he was thinking of marrying again.

The double burden caused him to fall ill, and it became necessary to call in a woman to care for the children. "I am a model," he said, and so he engaged a woman aged one hundred and seven years, but remembering that he was a Widower, and I'm chaperoned, he engaged two more women, aged ninety-three and eighty-seven, to stay with her.

"Put me among the immortals," he gasped with his dying breath. "As a widower I have been a Model."

Salads

NOVEL MAYONNAISE.

TAKE three fresh eggs, three tablespoonfuls of pure olive oil, three of vinegar, the juice of this lemon, a scant a saltspoonful of salt. Beat all this well together with an egg beater. When thoroughly mixed, put the pan into a larger one holding boiling water and beat with the egg beater until the mayonnaise has the right consistency. Take the pot out of the boiling water and stir for a little while until cooled. Be sure the water is boiling hard in which the mayonnaise is cooked or it will not get thick.

POTATO SALAD

SIX cups cold boiled potato cubes, one tablespoonful or more grated onion or onion juice, three or four tablespoonfuls parsley finely chopped, one and one-half or more teaspoonfuls salt, one-half teaspoonful pepper. Turn ingredients over until well blended. Let stand in a cool place until ready to serve. To one pint double cream (sweet) add four tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar and beat until thick; to the bottom of bowl. Mix the prepared potato with the dressing and serve at once.

MAKE YOUR OWN HAIR TONIC

A SPECIALIST'S ADVICE.

In a recent issue the New York Herald published a special article on the care of the hair, in which was given the formula for a home-made Hair Tonic, which was highly recommended for its remarkable hair-growing properties, as well as for stopping falling hair, revitalizing the hair roots, destroying the dandruff germ and restoring gray hair to its natural color. This article was of special interest to me, as the formula was one which I myself have prescribed in countless cases with most astonishing results. I remember one case in particular in which I prescribed it for a man who had been bald for many years and in less than two months after he began its use his head was completely covered with a luxuriant growth of rich, glossy hair, thus proving that hair can be made to grow on a bald head, notwithstanding the opinion of many persons to the contrary.

For the benefit of those who have not seen it before, I give the formula herewith: 6 ounces of Bay Rum, 3 ounces Lavoris (a Composed, non-alcoholic Menthol Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and then add the Lavoris de Comp. doses; shake thoroughly and apply night and morning to the roots of the hair, rubbing into the scalp with the finger tips. This preparation contains no coloring matter, but restores gray hair to its natural color by its action on the hair roots. If you desire it perfumed, add one teaspoonful of To-Kalon Perfume, which combines perfectly with the other ingredients and imparts a most pleasing scent.

Before publication we presented this prescription to Ritter-Jerman Drug Co., this city, and they state that they have filled it many times for their patrons, who report most astonishing results from its use.

THE TAMING OF THE JUNGLE

By DR. C. W. DOYLE

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

CHAPTER XVI.—(Continued)

HANGING on a wild plum tree that grew on the edge of the road was a bloodstained turban that fluttered in the storm. Tying it securely to the branch whence it hung, Ram Deen placed the unconscious bullock driver at the bottom of the cartcart, the hostler supporting his head.

Arrived at Kalidoongly, Ram Deen roused the native apothecary at the dispensary. Gpor Dutt was carried to and given to him by Captain Barfield, but his lamentable sahib will doubtless bestow upon them the laid on a charpoi, and whilst the apothecary attended to his hurts Ram Deen knocked on the Thanadar's door, and cried: "Wake, Thanadar Ji. There be bad men abroad to-night, and blows to pay."

When the two friends returned to the dispensary Goor Dutt was looking about him in a dazed fashion. The stimulant administered to him had begun to take effect, and the sight of the tall driver roused him to a recollection of the events of the night.

"Lalkaro neu," said he, feebly. "I counted five by the light of the torch they purned. They were nine, and double less I had been slain, but they heard thy bugle, and, whilst they hesitated, I shouted to them, and, freeing one hand, I drew the pistol Charlie Sahib gave me and fired once, and then a great darkness fell upon me."

Whilst the Thanadar roused a couple of his men Ram Deen slipped into his own garden to release Hasteen, for the goat-dog would be needed in the hunting of the night.

"Sahib ya there cannot be taken alive, Thanadar Ji," I replied.

"Why would you?" he inquired.

"They be hornets, kholawund," I made answer, "and must be smoked out of their nest. When they come forth we will take them as we best may."

So we proceeded without noise to the hut, and when we reached it the lantern showed us that the Thanadar and I, and Hasteen, whom I had unloosened, were alone. For, behold, the policemen had fled, not having stomach for blows; their leader had turned tail and their lives by way of water. For their fathers are Jackals and their mothers without honor; and the

Examned Tracks

"The man stricken by Good Dutt rode hence on a bullock," said Ram Deen, who had been examining the tracks in the mire with a lantern; "there be signs of but four men going hence, Thanadar Sahib, whereof five walked beside the wagon till it stopped here."

Ram Deen was in the jungle about a hundred yards from the road. The noise made by his progress had been entirely drowned in the roar of the storm, so cautiously did he proceed. Suddenly the turban taken from the tree round Hasteen's neck, Ram Deen struck into the trail, the dog walking beside him, whilst the others followed in single file. The tall driver stopped occasionally to examine the ground with his lantern. He had with him the revolver

Hut Was in a Blaze

"Thou art a liar!" I shouted, kicking to the thatch door of the hut, which fell in the fire on the hearth. In a moment the hut was in a blaze. Two men ran forth through the doorway, and, in the light of the burning hut I could see other twain breaking through the wall of thatch at the rear, whilst Kishwa, the wounded man, who was unable to move, greeted us with appalling screams the death that approached.

"I will attend to these, Thanadar Sahib," I shouted; "do thou and Hasteen look to those that escape from the rear."

"Seeing but one man in front of them, the fleeing men and tall—leapt upon me. I anticipated the blow of one, and he fell to the ground without even a cry; but the club of the other had crushed my skull, and I not wanted it with my left arm, which was broken thereby; and ere my assailant could again swing his weapon I had stretched him beside his companion.

"From the other side of the burning hut came the sounds of a terrible combat and of heavy blows. I made what haste I could, and as I turned the corner of the hut I stumbled over the body of Kishwa Adar. His pacas beyond was Hasteen, and he was serving the sircar as he best might. He stood over one of the dacoits, whom he held by the throat, whilst the other rained blows on him, till I made the fourth and only one left to flee, and he, too, had been, because my arm pained shrewd. So I was fain to sit on the fallen, and whilst Hasteen finished the fray in his own manner, the one on the left, more white, uttering screams that even a strong man might not hear unmoved.

"But he on the ground could not scream by reason of the fangs in his throat; for only gurgled, and rattled dreadfully, and the foam flew from his lips as the great dog shook him from side to side. When his head swayed helplessly I knew he was dead, so I bade Hasteen release him and the man in the hut having ceased his cries, I had the light to relieve the Thanadar and lo, he was dead, and the Terai bereft of his senses. But his sahib was not bereft of friends. And now, as the sahib stumbled but ten well, there be none in the Terai to maintain the orders of the sircar."

"Nevertheless, Ram Deen," said Captain Fisher, "we must look to our own safety in the future to be a terror to evil-doers, and here are papers making you Thanadar of this district. What say you?"

"The sircar is my father and my mother, Fisher Sahib," but his face fell as he spoke, for he knew neither learning nor wisdom were his, and I not wanted it with my left arm, which was broken thereby; and my assailant could again swing his weapon

"What meant that shout?" asked Tara, when Ram Deen returned home an hour later.

"Congratulation to thy Lumbs Deen, doing legal for a trifle of money and some honor as naive for a broken bone. Light in Darkness."

"What honor?" she inquired, eagerly.

"But the money was the greater, my Star."

"Now, nay, we lord rifles with me. The honor, the honor!" she demanded.

"And if I were to tell thee that they have made me Thanadar of this Zoolo darees?

"It is but thy due, my lord; and thou hast but prepared the way for thy manchild. Said I not many moons ago that he should be Thanadar of Kalsdoongie one day?"

"I will help her in the bringing up of thy son," said a tall woman—she of the muffled face—coming into the room; "and he shall be worthy of thee, who art now as great as thou hast been always good."

HOW GRACE BENSON BECAME FAMOUS FOR THE BEAUTY OF HER HANDS AND ARMS

FREE PRESCRIPTION THAT CAN BE PREPARED AT HOME WITHOUT EXPENSE

Grace Benson, famous for the marvelous beauty of her hands and arms in a recent interview, says: "If I could tell every woman about the prescription that has caused so much talk about my hands and arms they could surely use them to make their hands and arms just as beautiful as mine. I am glad to have the opportunity for I owe my secret free to the world. It will help every woman to improve her personal appearance." When I asked her if she would allow me to publish the prescription, she quickly answered: "Certainly, only too glad to have you do it." Trusting to a clue she wrote it on a slip of paper and handed it to me: here it is: "Go to Hiles-Jarnes Drug Stores, get an empty two-ounce bottle, also a one-ounce bottle of Kulux Compound. Pour the entire bottle of Kulux into the two-ounce bottle, add quarter of an ounce of witch hazel, then fill with water. Apply night and morning." She further said: "This prescription makes the skin transparent and removes all defects such as freckles, tan, sun spots, roughness and ruddiness. A single application works a marvelous transformation." Where low collars are worn it can be applied to the neck with equally as startling results. It is absolutely harmless, and will positively not stimulate or produce a growth of hair.

LOCAL NATIONAL BANKS IN LEAD

A recent report of the Comptroller of the Currency shows a total of 27,000 banks in the United States, including national banks, trust companies, and private banks.

Out of this number 176 have deposits ranging from $10,000,000 to $215,000,000, with gross deposits of one-third the entire bank deposits of the country.

"This growth is recent—a development of the past ten years," according to the Financial Age, of New York, and of this number the National City Bank of New York is the largest bank in the country with deposits of $215,000,000.

The First National Bank of Boston, during this past decade, shows the largest percentage of increase in deposits of any bank in the United States, and although this increase is primarily due to the consolidation of several banks, the deposits, since the consolidations were effected, some years ago, have increased in large amounts from $25,000,000 to $53,000,000. During the past year the increase has been more than $12,000,000, this amount alone equalling the total deposits of the First National as it was ten years ago.

The First National Bank reported deposits of $61,741,194 on January last, has $1,200,000 in bank notes outstanding, with an equal amount of United States bonds to secure this circulation, and $5,962,986 surplus and undivided profits. The capital is $3,000,000, and the bank building is valued at $1,000,000.

On December 7 the Shawmut National Bank had $44,472,146 immediately available, and $10,922,434 which is available in thirty days, while $10,742,438 is available within or about four months. Its capital is $3,500,000, and the surplus and profits $5,052,013. Deposits on the above date were $73,482,221. The building is valued at $2,850,000.

D'CHAMPLAIN GETS BAIL; REARRESTED

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 13.—Joseph D'Champlain, former president of the New England Investment company, who was arrested in this city Tuesday and committed to jail, has obtained his liberty by furnishing bonds of $40,000. His bondsmen are John T. Levasseur and Alphonse Gregoire. Immediately afterward Mr. D'Champlain was arrested on a civil suit but promptly secured bail. This was a small matter, the claim being only $350. Attachments in $1,000 have been placed on his automobile.

COURT RULES RATS WEARING APPAREL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The high cost of the ancient art of hairdressing probably will receive added impetus by a decision made public today by the United States Court of Customs Appeals. Judge de Vries, coming with the perennial relations between rats, mice and marcel waves, hair rolls and other necessaries of the feminine coiffure, upholds Collector Loeb, who contended that rats are "wearing apparel of every description," and therefore costs a pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem.

STUART BEGINS JAIL TERM OF 3 YEARS

MAYOR VETOES PAY RAISE FOR BURGESS

The order increasing the salary of George A. Burgess from $2,400 to $3,180 and changing his rating from chief clerk and the School Superintendent's office to secretary to the superintendent, has been vetoed by Mayor Fitzgerald.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

BRISK BUYING BOOMS STOCKS

Whenever the bears try to make a demonstration the strong hand of Morgan is quickly but firmly slipped under the market.

$ $ $

It begins to look as though the leading financiers are determined to keep people out of the stock market in order to preserve what money there is for the bonds which will be issued soon in battalions by the railroads.

$ $ $

Money continues to flow into the New York banks, the gain from the sub-treasury this week being $5,700,000. The technical position of the stock market shows improvement because of the extinction of the short interest as a result of the recession from attempts to break the list.

$ $ $

New York Central is the latest candidate for favor of the bond buyers. That it needs many millions of new money is no secret, but rumors included one that Morgan & Co. had been negotiating with foreign bankers, the idea being to place about $40,000,000 of capital in per cent debentures at once. This rumor is denied officially, but experience teaches that the denial of a New York Central bond rumor is the same thing as official confirmation, because the denials are techniacl. It will probably be found that no negotiations have been carried on for $40,000,000 of bonds, $75,000,000 being nearer the figure.

$ $ $

In connection with Pennsylvania's proposed new stock issue, the Street is full of unofficial estimates of the vast profits made by contractors and others out of the New York terminals. Those originally sold to the company more than $100,000,000 of financing, and are extraordinarily well distributed that had to be overcome that the middlemen and sub-contractors made heavy profits because the work was not considered that none of it could be done at a fixed price agreed on in advance. That was the greatest single job ever undertaken, except the Panama Canal, from shows why the railroads need so much money. They are so vast that they cannot spend their money directly with the vast results, as bulldozing or small corporations can. It is an established fact in railroading that the bigger the company the less it gets for every dollar expended.

$ $ $

Some of the financial reviews which are particularly friendly to certain interests have been calling attention to the extraordinary prosperity of the Canadian Pacific railroad, and have given as a reason that the company is not harassed by government supervision. As a matter of fact, it is the strict government supervision of Canadian Pacific which has made the property what it is. The Canadian Pacific's high officials are really part of the Canadian government, and control their road very much as a trustee would handle his property. There is no favor to any one but the public and the stockholders, and the latter two classes are divided exactly according to the number of shares held by each one. Edward Ripley of the Atchison, who recently published a most remarkable article on railroads, should write another one, comparing the Atchison with the Canadian Pacific.

$ $ $

The offering of 200,000 shares of treasury stock of Porcupine Central by J. Thomas Reinhardt has been more than 100 per cent. oversubscribed, and the issue will be listed on the New York Curb. A letter has been sent pointing out that the company is organized along the lines of a closed syndicate operating in Porcupine, with this important difference, that it has invited the public to participate in operations right from the beginning, while the possibilities of the properties have not yet been exploited.

PROMISES NOT TO SPEA KON STREET

The case of Frank Urbansky of Warren avenue, who was convicted in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court on a charge of disturbing the peace, has been placed on file by Assistant District Attorney Lavelle. Urbansky has agreed not to speak publicly again in the streets, it is said. He achieved notoriety when he was attacked by United States sailors in Peterboro square because he cast reflections on the navy in the course of a speech. In the Municipal Court he was found guilty of disturbing the peace and appealed.

RECORD YEAR IN COTTON EXPORT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—Cotton exports from the United States in 1910 aggregate 8520,000,000 in value, exceeding by $60,000,000 the highest record heretofore made, according to a report issued to-day by the department of agriculture. The average export price in 1910 was 14½ cents per pound, against 10 cents in 1908, the high year for quantity, the average export price in 1910 having been higher than in any year since 1874. December, 1910, alone, shows the highest monthly record, the total value of cotton exports in that month being $100,000,000, while no earlier month ever reached the $100,000,000 line. The average export price in December was 14.8 cents per pound, while in the months of July and August the average was 18 cents per pound.

The Senatorial Struggle in Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York and Elsewhere. Election by the People Alone Will Solve the Problem

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

How long will it take the people of the United States to make up their minds that they will elect their own Senators?

How long will the right to represent the State in the United States Senate at Washington be sometimes put up at auction by dishonest Legislatures and sometimes distributed by bosses in accordance with the dictates of corporations?

Men are sent to the Senate to represent the PEOPLE. Is there any reason under the sun why the people should not send them there?

It isn't necessary to emphasize the character of many of the State Legislatures. The disgraceful revelations in Illinois and elsewhere prove that on the present basis the senatorship means an opportunity for a bribe-taking legislator to enrich himself by sending a dishonorable man to Washington.

In many States now there is struggling, trickery, conspiring and trading for seats in the Senate—and the people whom the Senators ought to represent are apparently the element that counts least in all of these senatorial enterprises.

Are the people children, unfit to manage their own affairs, unfit to select officials for themselves?

If they are, and if only corrupt legislators, or more corrupt corporation owners, are fit to select senators—why have the farce of a republican government at all?

If the people are able to select the President of the United States, voting for him practically directly, despite the defunct constitutional provision to the contrary, why should not the people vote for their Senators directly?

Does anybody doubt that a majority of the voters in any State would give a decision more honest than that which is usually given by a majority of legislators in any State Legislature?

Look at the struggles that are going on now in different States, where the late political flip-flop has aroused all sorts of ambition.

In Massachusetts we have Lodge, a trust-made corporation Senator, candidate to succeed himself. If Senators were elected by the votes of the people, as Foss was elected by the people's vote, Massachusetts might be represented in the Senate at Washington by a man who would speak and act for the people, instead of for corrupt corporations.

In the State of New York a number of men have been openly discussed in the newspapers, by the political bosses and by others as senatorial candidates—and among these men "prominently mentioned" for the senatorship not one is by any means the choice of the people.

Why shouldn't the people of New York State elect their Senator—why must a Senator be elected by a boss and a Legislature subservient to that boss?

In New Jersey the condition is even more striking. Governor Wilson is trying to force the election of Mr. Martine, a good-natured, genial individual, undoubtedly, but a man of no power, and not the man that could win in a struggle before the people in an open election.

Professor Wilson is alleged to have said in private that the election of Mr. Martine to the Senate would be a disgrace to the State of New Jersey. Whether he actually said that or not—he has not yet denied it—it is certain that he KNOWS that Mr. Martine is not the man that the people themselves would elect.

There is in the world no more important law-making body than the Senate of the United States. That body, according to the plans of those that established the government, should be made up of thoughtful, able men, conservative in the true sense of the word. Their mature deliberation and judgment is necessary to the enactment of legislation, the making of treaties, the confirmation of the most important acts of the President of the United States.

Those that established our government believed that each State would select as members of its Legislature worthy citizens, reflecting the best thought of the citizenship and patriotism of their day.

The method of electing Senators, devised by the founders of the government, has proved to be a mistaken method.

The people see senatorships bought and sold openly, shamelessly. They see the Senate itself refusing to expel such a man as Lorimer, although there is no doubt in the mind of any man in the Senate in Washington that money was paid to legislators that voted for him.

The people should change a system that has proved a failure, that has proved dishonorable and the cause of bribe-giving and bribe-taking.

Let the people vote directly for the Senators, and let the citizens of the State that aspire to go to the Senate do something to prove their worth, something to earn the people's approval and the people's votes.

The most shameless features of our national government, the most shameful men connected with our government have been revealed—some of them by Standard Oil letters that W. R. Hearst read—in the membership of the Senate of the United States.

This body should be swept out clean by the people, and it should be renewed by the people's votes.

The best medicine is a laugh. You get the best laughs and the most of them when you read the Big City Life Section of the Sunday AMERICAN.

DR. PARKHURST'S ARTICLE

THE CLUB VERSUS THE HOME

Written for the Boston American

By Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

"HOW is it that you contrive to grow younger year by year?" was the question recently put to the urbane conductor of an express running out from Boston. "Because, when I get through my day's work I do not go out in the evening, but spend it at home with my wife and children." "Then you do not belong to a club?" "No, sir; I do not." "Good for you and for your family; clubs are a device of the devil." And female clubs are as much worse than male as women are better than men.

Clubs work with an especially diabolical effect in the case of married people. They divide attention, devotion and affection between the home proper and its artificial substitute and competitor. They do not, of course, always operate in that way, but that is their tendency. Clubmen make poor husbands and fathers, and clubwomen make poor wives and mothers. Clubs weaken the natural bonds of domestic coherency.

Even young men who are not married, but who ought to be—for marriage is ordinarily a duty—are prevented from establishing a true home by the attractions of communal bachelor life, which tends not only to prevent legitimate marriage, but can easily issue in relations that are decidedly deficient in legitimacy.

Club Life Attractions Menace Family Ties

IT not only menaces the closeness of relation between husband and wife, but as well between parents and children, and weakens the power of the home. Fathers know only too little of their children at best, and by indulgence in club life only diminish what little opportunity they would otherwise have of knowing and influencing them. "Mother," said a child in a suburban home, "who is that man that comes here to stay over Sundays?" It was the child's father.

Too much of parental responsibility is allowed to devolve upon mothers. It requires masculine as well as feminine influence to fashion the child into manhood and womanhood. Matured character is a combination of gentleness and vigor, and the task of effecting this is secured in part by twofoldness of parentage; and if the father has no intercourse with his children in the morning and spends his evenings with connives outside, the child might as well have no father and grow up a mere motherboy, save only in the matter of what the father contributes as bread-winner.

It is a sad day for a child when it begins to infer from its father's or mother's example that there is some denser, sweeter place than home. The undermining and enfeeblement of home life is one of the sore spots in our civilization.

One Admirable Trait That Anarchists Possess

THERE is no country so sterile as not to yield some product that it would be for our interest to possess, no man so abandoned that something could not be quoted from him that it would be to our advantage to imitate.

A certain old lady was of so considerate and genial a temper that she could find beauty in the most unpromising of places, and discover unsuspected gems in the blackest marsh mire. One day her granddaughters agreed to tear her over the devil. "Grandma, what do you think of the devil?" "I think a good deal of him, my children, and this in particular, how well it would be for the world if we would each of us attend as faithfully as he to our own business."

Even Anarchists, whom we, and especially just now the English, regard with mingled fear and abhorrence, are distinguished by one trait that no one can hesitate to admire and eulogize. In point of serious and undeviating devotion to their principles and purposes they are an example which any best man in the world may well be proud to follow.

To hug a principle with an embrace that has in it no letting-go come what may, torture or death, is a quality as sublime as it is rare, and, considered as means to an end, stands supreme. It is the same in a devil as in an angel and is what does things.

To that extent an Anarchist is possessed of one of the most valuable attributes of manhood.

It is not to the purpose to say that it operates to the overthrow of our civilization. As exercised by an Anarchist of course it does. So fire works to the destruction of life and the devastation of cities, but is nevertheless one of God's best gifts to man.

The fault with fire is not that it is so hot and consuming, but that its inactive energy gets sometimes misdirected. A devil is a misdirected angel. An Anarchist daring death in order to rid the world of President Garfield or the Empress of Austria has in him a single fiber of the same stuff as made the Cromwell or Lincoln.

What a thing it would be for the world if we could catch all the Anarchists and then instead of killing them entirely could save out of each his passionate intensity of purpose and warm it over in the flame of humanitarian impulse.

The Red Corpuscle

By WEX JONES

"GIVE us some more stories by A. Snorington Snoose," writes Jos. Pepper, of No. 84 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. "Every one in this locality is fond of studies in peace." We have already complied with Mr. Pepper's request and in this number our readers will find a beautiful study in somnolence by Mr. Snoose. However, the Editors have not neglected The Red Corpuscle's specialty of action, and in this number will be found some red-hot products from our story foundry.

The recently organized Poets' Union of America has not invited the red-blooded craftsman who designs our Poems of Action to join the organization, so our Editors are about to form a Society of Hapless Poets, which will make the other outfit take to the woods. The new society will bar all such dope as comparing a girl's eyes to "deep pools." Their night possibly be compared to the flocking or some such pool in which one loses faith and money. The society will soon issue a list of forbidden phrases, words and similies. In the meantime our craftsman will cavit away as craftily as possible.

CARAMBA CON CARNE.

By Don Seltzer Carbonic.

A tale of battle, intrigue and love in the fiery tropic land of Hondurico.

Colonel Escampo's sword clanked as he strode down the principal street of Banana, the capital city of Hondurico.

Colonel Escampo had a weight concealed in the end of his scabbard, so that the clanking would be loud and continuous.

Just now he was about to call on Elvira, the fair daughter of the twenty-ninth aide de camp to the President.

Elvira received the gallant colonel with a smile, which he fondly attributed to love and not to the fact that on entering the patio his sword had got between his legs and had thrown him headlong upon a sleeping cur, which, after one earnest bite at the colonel's legs, had fled, yelping. But the smile upon Colorado Maduro's face was not prompted by love, for Colorado Maduro also hoped to win Elvira.

While Colonel Escampo called Elvira the star of his soul, Colorado scientifically approached the door and fired a shot from his revolver.

"Draw your sword and defend Elvira while I alarm the army," he cried. But, alas, Colonel Escampo's sword was not locust to be drawn and he could not pull it from the scabbard. Colorado laughed hoarsely, and, borrowing a carving knife from the cook, placed it in the hands of the Colonel, he bravely attempted to look martial.

In the meantime the shot had aroused the town. The rebels were believed to be upon the outskirts.

Twenty frantic generals rushed hither and thither hunting for the private. A thousand curses, but he could not be found. The army could not be mustered.

More than 2,500 generals, and even the brave President himself, were in tears. At this moment Colonel Escampo, having cut off his sword with the carving knife, appeared in the plaza.

"I will be the private!" he cried.

After a moment of stunned silence, every one burst into cheers of "Viva Escampo." Hastily the President appointed the gallant man private of the army of Honduricо, the army fell in, and under the command of 2,575 generals, he was marched to the front.

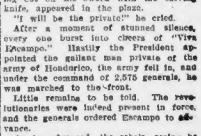
Little remains to be told. The revolutionaries were indeed present in force, and the generals ordered Escampo to advance.

As he advanced, the rebels, seeing he bore nothing but a carving knife, took him for their leader's new chief and conducted him straight to the tent of Caramba Con Carne himself.

It was the work of a moment for Escampo to capture the revolutionary leader!

Colorado Maduro was found to have been in correspondence with Caramba and was shot.

As for Elvira, she was so overcome with admiration for Escampo's bravery that she became Senora Escampo, and the hero again



clanks his sword along the streets of Banana.

POEMS OF ACTION.

Devised and manufactured by our red-blooded craftsmen.

Once there was a cowboy who drank some liquor;
First it made him sick and then it made him sicker;
Then he drank more, and he died that much quicker.

A man was caught in a subway door—
He had five fingers; now he has four.
